PREFACE

REVIEW OF 1916

AMONGST the New Year Honours announced on January 1, literature as such received no distinction, but the honour of knighthood was bestowed upon Sir Owen Morgan Edwards, Chief Inspector of Education for Wales and a distinguished Celtic scholar; and also upon the Rev. Sir George Adam Smith, Principal and Vice-Chancellor of Aberdeen University, and a well-known Hebrew scholar. Both these are eminent writers on their respective subjects.

The most generally interesting amongst the Birthday Honours announced on June 3 was the Order of Merit conferred on Mr. A. J. Balfour, in recognition of his work in philosophy and literature. At the same time Sir Algernon Marshall Methuen, the publisher, received the honour of a Baronetcy of the United Kingdom; and Sir Stanley Reed, LL.D., editor of the Times of India, and Sir Theodore Andrea Cook, editor of the Field; the honour of Knighthood.

The principal literary event of the year has been the almost world-wide celebrations in connection with the Tercentenary of the death of Shakespeare. Considering that practically three-quarters of the civilized world was (and still is) engaged in the most devastating war in history, the fact that it had time and inclination to carry out these celebrations testifies, more eloquently than words, to the esteem in which Shakespeare is universally held. We cannot here do more than mention some of the chief events of the celebrations in this country.

In order to bring our calendar into line with that in use in Shakespeare's life-time, May 3, corresponding to April 23 old style, was observed as Shakespeare Day, on which date the annual Shakespeare lecture, founded in the British Academy, was delivered by Professor J. W. Mackail. Lord Bryce, who presided, mentioned that amongst those present at the lecture was an ex-Minister of the Shah of Persia, who had translated eleven of Shakespeare's plays into his native tongue. He also announced that the Rose Mary Crawshay prize had been awarded to Mrs. Carmichael Stopes for her book on Shakespeare (Shakespeare's Industry; Bell).

The most notable feature of the celebrations was the commemoration performance at Drury Lane Theatre, on May 2, in which all the leading actors of the day took part. The performance was held under the patronage of their Majesties the King and Queen, and the play selected was that of Julius Cæsar, followed by a Pageant of Plays. The event of the performance was the knighting of Sir Frank Benson by the King on the conclusion of the tragedy, a knighthood never better nor more appropriately bestowed. Messrs. Macmillan published A Tribute to the Genius of William Shakespeare as a souvenir of the commemoration performance, a volume worthy of its purpose, the proceeds of both being devoted to the British Red Cross Society and the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

On May 5, also, a special performance was given at the Memorial Theatre at Stratford-on-Avon.

On May 8 Mr. Martin Harvey began his Shakespeare season at His Majesty's Theatre with Hamlet, followed by The Taming of the Shrew, King Richard III., and King Henry V.

Sunday, April 30, was set apart as "Shakespeare Sunday," when a special commemoration service was held at Westminster Abbey, Bishop Boyd Carpenter being the preacher. A memorial service was also held at Stratford-on-Avon, the sermon being preached by the Rev. Canon Anthony Charles Deane, Vicar of Hampstead.

The celebrations were naturally accompanied by various Tercentenary books, of which the most important, as well as the most sumptuous, was A Book of Homage to Shakespeare (Mitford), a large quarto compiled by Dr. Gollancz, with the approval of the Tercentenary Committee, of which he was the honorary secretary. Mention should also be made of A Tribute to the Genius of William Shakespeare (Macmillan), being the contribution of artists to the celebrations; Studies in Shakespeare for his Tercentenary, by Mary A. Woods (Truslove and Hanson); and the several scholarly catalogues of exhibitions of Shakespeareana at Oxford, London, Stratford-on-Avon, John Ryland's Library at Manchester, and Cardiff.

Planned several years ago by Sir Walter Raleigh, and published on July 11 by the Clarendon Press in two volumes, Shakespeare's England: An Account of the Life and Manners of his Age, contains a fine Ode by Dr. Bridges, the Poet Laureate, on the Tercentenary of Shakespeare.

in the two volumes. He also chose many of the rare illustrations, while he contributed the essay on "Bear-baiting, Bull-baiting, and Cock-fighting," but he was obliged to abandon the work of editing in 1914, and the volumes were completed by other hands.

An exhibition of original records, chiefly illustrating Shakespeare's life at Stratford-on-Avon, was opened at his birthplace on April 22 by Sir Sidney Lee, who gave a brief address on "Shakespeare and Stratford-on-Avon."

At the Bodleian Library, Oxford, a Shakespeare Exhibition was opened on April 24, to remain on view for two or three months. Except for the British Museum, no library is so rich in Shakespeariana as the Bodleian, which contains books and MSS of surpassing interest and value. The catalogue (O.U.P., 5s. net.) of this exhibition is a remarkable publication, and a valuable possession for any student of Shakespeare.

In London, also, a special temporary exhibition was held at the Victoria and Albert Museum of various Shakespeariana, acquired in past years largely under the Dyce, Forster, and Charles Kean bequests, which are not usually shown to the public.

During the progress of the Shakespeare celebrations an appeal was issued by a representative body of English men of letters for a sum of £10,000, on behalf of the Shakespeare Head Press, in order to maintain it in full working condition. Mr. A. H. Bullen, who owns and manages the Press, is a scholar who has devoted most of his life to Elizabethan literature, and he could issue many more books—books of great value to scholars and students—had he more capital at his disposal.

Abroad, Shakespeare celebrations were held in New York (where Sir Herbert Tree gave a special performance), in Paris, in Christiania, and elsewhere.

It is worthy of note to record that the tercentenary of the death of another illustrious writer, Cervantes, also fell due at the same time, both Shakespeare and Cervantes having died in April, 1616, though, owing to a difference between the English and Spanish Calendars at that period of nearly a fortnight, the further coincidence that both died the same day, April 23, is not strictly accurate.

The coincidence of these two tercentenaries was made the occasion of a proposal, put forth by an influential committee, of which the Spanish Ambassador was president and Professor Gollancz honorary secretary, to raise a fund of at least £20,000 to found in the University of London a professorship of Spanish Language and Literature, to be associated with the name of Cervantes. The proposal took shape when the Professorship was duly inaugurated at King's College on October 11, and its first occupant, Professor Fitzmaurice Kelly, gave an address on "The Spirit of Spanish Literature."

A week later, on October 19, it was announced that Lord and Lady Cowdray had made the munificent benefaction of £10,000 for the endowment of a Chair of Spanish Language and Literature in the University of Leeds.

Another munificent gift of £10,000, also to the University of Leeds, has to be recorded, in the founding of a Professorship of Russian Language and Literature by Sir James Roberts, Bart., of Saltaire, Yorks.

To commemorate the residence and death in Chelsea of Henry James the novelist, a memorial is being subscribed for by residents in Chelsea, which is to consist of a bronze portrait bust, executed from life in 1914, by Lieut. F. Derwent Wood, A.R.A., and a complete collection of the best editions of his works, which will be placed in the reference library of the Chelsea Public Library.

At the Red Cross Sale at Messrs. Christies', on April 27 and 28, of books and MSS, one of the most important lots was a copy of the fourth folio of Shakespeare's plays, 1685, bought by an anonymous gentleman, who presented it to the London Library. Lady Wernher added to her numerous public-spirited gifts by purchasing certain letters of Dr. Johnson and presenting them to the British Museum.

Swinburne's library, rich in modern English and French literature, was sold by Messrs. Sotheby on June 19 and the two following days. It contained a large number of presentation copies from modern authors to the poet.

Messrs. Sotheby also sold, during the summer, a remarkable collection—the owner of which remained anonymous—of early books dealing with America, such as probably never before came into the auction-room.

In July Messrs. Sotheby resumed the sale of the famous Huth Library, this being the fifth portion, containing books and pamphlets under the letter M, and was notable for its rare first editions of Milton. The fourth portion was sold in July, 1914.

On July 5 was issued the list of Civil List Pensions granted during the year ending March 31, 1916. The following are connected with services to literature:

August 19, 1915.

Mr. Joseph Comyns Carr, in consideration of his services to art, literature, and drama (£200).

Mr. W. H. Mallock, in consideration of his distinguished literary work (£150).

Mrs. Amy Bullen, in consideration of the literary work of her husband, the late Mr. F. T. Bullen (£50).

December 20, 1915.

Dr. Thomas Ross, in recognition of his services to the history of architecture (£200).

Lady Murray, in recognition of her late husband's services as editor of the New English Dictionary (£170).

Mrs. Illingworth, in recognition of the philosophical work of her husband, the late Dr. J. H. Illingworth (£100).

Mr. W. H. Davies, in recognition of his poetical work, in addition to his pension of £50 a year (£50).

Glastonbury Festival.—The third summer meeting of this festival was held during August, when a successful performance of Mr. Rutland Boughton's music-drama, The Round Table, based on the Arthurian legends, was given, followed by a lesser work of great charm and a wholly different character, a Japanese play entitled The Sumida River.

An American tribute has been paid to the memory of the late Rupert Brooke in the award, for distinction in literature, of the Howland Memorial of $1,500 (£300).

Literature and the War.—At the annual general meeting of the English Association, Bedford College, on May 13, an interesting conference was held on the effect of the war on the production and reading of literature from the point of view of the author, the teacher, the publisher, and the bookseller, who were represented by Mr. de la Mare, Mr. Mais of Sherborne, Mr. Buchan, Mr. J. G. Wilson. Whereas the immediate effect of the outbreak of war in 1914 was to render all books almost unsaleable, towards Christmas of that year a gradual revival set in, till now it may be safely conjectured more and better books are being read than was the case before the summer of 1914, or indeed at any time. If one aspect is more remarkable than another, it is the wonderful revival of poetry which the war has brought about. More and better poetry is being written, read, and appreciated in England to-day than has been the case for many years, a revival which happily coincides with the Tercentenary celebrations of the national poet. People who formerly had no taste for poetry now read and enjoy it. Much, too, of this poetry has come, literally, from the trenches, where men have written, under the stress of war and all that it means, words more vivid and intense than any prose description or records. There is reason to hope that this new and enlarged reading public will not disappear with the return of peace, but that the war will have been the means of creating a better and more widely read literature.

Wordsworth and Shelley appear to be read more, while the poems of James Elroy Flecker and Rupert Brooke have had an immense sale. On the other hand, Kipling has ceased to be the soldier's author.

Throughout the year war books have continued to predominate in publishers' lists, and mention should be made here of the "Annotated Bibliography of Literature issued during the European Conflict," entitled Books on the Great War, compiled by Messrs. F. W. T. Lange, and W. T. Berry, of the St. Bride Institute Library, and published by Messrs. Grafton and Co., of which four volumes have been issued.

Mr. John Fortescue, librarian at Windsor Castle, is engaged on writing the official history of the war.

As showing the extent to which Germany relies upon the press to justify her actions and influence public opinion, it is estimated that her output of publications on the war is equal to that of France and Britain combined, while she is building a special library wherein to house this literature.

A short Act, to which reference is made in our Law and Letters section, styled "Trading with the Enemy (Copyright) Act, 1916," was passed in August, which vests in the Public Trustee the copyright in all "works first published or made in an enemy country during the present war." The effect of this Act is that the Public Trustee has the powers and rights of the owner of the copyright, and can make arrangements with any publisher who may wish to translate the work of any author who is a subject of a State with which this country is at war, holding the money paid for royalties till after the war.

Publishers have already availed themselves of this Act, Messrs. Cassell having published in November a translation of an enlarged edition of Prince Bülow's Deutsche Politik, under the title, Imperial Germany. Application under the Act for licences to publish other German works have been made by Messrs. C. A. Pearson, Ltd., and Messrs. King and Sons, Ltd., the former for The Voyage of the Deutschland, and the latter for Friedrich Naumann's Middle-Europe.

Other Publications of the Year.—While, generally speaking, the output of fiction has been much less than in peace-time, its place being taken by war literature and volumes of poems, our leading novelists, such as Arnold Bennett, E. F. Benson, Mrs. Humphry Ward, H. G. Wells, and others, have continued active.

An interesting volume which appeared during the autumn was a posthumous Kingsley, The Tutor's Story, an unpublished novel by the late Charles Kingsley, completed by his daughter Lucas Malet (Mrs. St. Leger Harrison) (Smith, Elder). The MSS. was discovered last winter, and Mrs. Harrison surmises Kingsley turned from it to write "The Water Babies"; but he left sufficient notes to show how he intended to complete it.

In Biography the past year has seen the publication of the Life of Robert Hugh Benson (2 vols.) by the Rev. C. C. Martindale (Longmans); the life and work of the veteran naturalist, W. B. Tegetmeier, by E. W. Richardson, his son-in-law, (Witherby); the fourth volume of the Life of Benjamin Disraeli, by G. E. Buckle (Murray); Letters and Recollections of Algernon Charles Swinburne (Smith, Elder), and Life of Theodore Watts-Dunton (Jack), both under the joint editorship of Mr. Thomas Hake and Dr. Compton-Rickett.

In periodical literature there appeared, inter alia, Form, a new quarterly of the arts (March); Colour, a magazine dealing with the reproduction of illustrations in colour; Gypsy, a quarterly after the style of the "Savoy" and "Yellow Book"; The Collector, a monthly whose title sufficiently indicates its nature; History, a quarterly journal and the official organ of the Historical Association, edited by Professor Pollard; The New Europe (October), a weekly paper devoted to foreign politics and war problems (Constable); The Imperialist, a new journal conducted by Mr. Pemberton-Billing, M.P., the title of which indicates its outlook: we understand it is supplied by subscription only.

The Times has added to its various supplements a Trade Supplement, issued the first Monday of every month. The first issue appeared in April.

With the issue for November 20, its price was raised to 1½d., a step necessitated by the great increase in the cost of production, particularly of paper, a fact which is causing great difficulties to all publishers. It was considered better to increase the price rather than reduce the size of The Times.

We were glad to note a 'protest was raised, in the form of a letter to the editor of The Times, by the Authors' Society, in which they had the support of the Publishers' Association, against the number of war-charity books, published particularly at Christmas, to the great prejudice of other books. As a class, authors have probably suffered more than any other by the war; it is poor charity which raises money for an object, however worthy in itself, by depriving others of their means of livelihood at a specially difficult time.

Trade and Other Changes.—The goodwill and copyright of the Standard newspaper, founded as an evening paper in May, 1827, was offered by auction on February 23, but the bids being insufficient, was withdrawn, and during March its publication was suspended. It first appeared as a morning paper in 1857, at the price of 2d., which in February of the following year was reduced to 1d. The suspension of publication of the Standard does not affect the Evening Standard, which is an entirely separate undertaking.

On March 25 there ceased also the publication of Keene's Bath Journal, one of the oldest weekly provincial newspapers, having been founded by Thomas Boddeley in 1742. Punch of February 16 contained the last chapter of "The Diary of Toby, M.P.," a serial which lasted for thirty-five years. Sir Henry Lucy, however, continues his "Cross Bench" article in the Observer, a series which began two years earlier than the "Diary."

The publishing business of Messrs. Headley Brothers, which had been established for twenty years at Devonshire House, Bishopsgate, E.C., has come under new management, and was transferred, during March, to larger premises in Kingsway. At the same time, while continuing to publish the class of books for which the firm is already well known, it will widen its scope to embrace all kinds of general literature.

The publishing firm of Messrs. T. C. and E. C. Jack, Ltd., has been incorporated by Messrs. Thomas Nelson and Sons, Ltd., of Parkside, Edinburgh, and Paternoster Row, London.

The Literary Agency of London has been taken over by Mr. Curtis Brown.

Owing to the great increase in the cost of production—alluded to above—it has been found necessary to raise the price of the Literary Year-Book to seven shillings and sixpence net.

AUTHORS

NOTE.—The following Directory is confined, chiefly from considerations of space, to British and Colonial writers. A few American authors, however, will be found, and certain Continental writers who publish in this country.

The particulars have been supplied, in nearly all cases, by the authors themselves, and the Editor desires to thank the large number of correspondents who have assisted in this manner. For the reason stated above, it has not always been possible to give an exhaustive list of each writer's work; but the titles included having been selected by the authors, the information in such cases will be found representative. Where no definite information has been obtainable, names have been necessarily omitted.

A (†) prefixed means that the name is a pseudonym. C=Contributor.

Where two or more consecutive books have been given, issued by the same firm, the publisher's name has not been repeated.

BOOK AND MAGAZINE ILLUSTRATORS

NOTE.—The titles following each name are those of the various books illustrated, with the Publisher and—in some cases—year of issue. Where two or more consecutive books have been issued by the same firm, the publisher's name is not repeated. The Editor will be glad to receive names and particulars for this Directory; and any assistance towards increasing and making it comprehensive will be welcomed. Every endeavour has been made to obtain information at first-hand (and the Editor begs to thank all those who have assisted in this respect), but where no returns have been made, particulars have been gathered from other sources.

LAW AND LETTERS

As a preface to any observations on the general law affecting copyright, it seems advisable to shortly deal with the copyright situation as it is now affected by the war between this country and Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Turkey. Misconceptions seem to abound as to the suggested rights of British subjects to copy or translate the works of German or Austrian writers, based on the fallacy that because a state of war exists between those countries and us, the legal right to copyright is forfeited. This view, it is submitted, is not correct.

The case of Turkey need not long occupy our attention, as we have no treaty with that country, nor is she a signatory to the Copyright Union. Germany, however, is a signatory to the Revised Berne Convention of 1908, and we have a copyright treaty with Austria since 1893, so both these countries are entitled to copyright protection, though Germany alone is a member of the Copyright Union. The Berne Convention was not a treaty between belligerents only, and would not therefore be terminated by war. Our treaty with Austria has not been suspended by either party, and belongs to that type of treaty which many international jurists have affirmed is never annulled by a state of war. Copyright is admittedly private property, and such property can be confiscated by the Crown alone, and no such confiscation has taken or is likely to take place. Authors are therefore warned against proceeding on the assumption that alien enemy authors have no further right during the war to copyright, for they might find to their cost that though, during the war, no action could be brought against them here by the alien enemy, yet when peace again prevails, such an action would lie in respect of infringement of copyright because the right had never been annulled, and in the view of many lawyers not even suspended.

At the same time, by an Act passed August 10, 1916, the legal position with regard to "works first published or made in an enemy country during the present war" has been materially altered. The Act is styled Trading with the Enemy (Copyright) Act, 1916, and vests in the Public Trustee the copyright in all such works—i.e., works first published or made in an enemy country during the present war, the copyright wherein would, had a state of war not existed, have vested in any person as the first owner thereof by virtue of the application to an enemy country of any Order in Council made under the Copyright Act, 1911. The effect of this unobtrusive little statute may be greater than even its many critics anticipate. The Act and its preamble are so important that their text is given below for the reader's information:

"Whereas doubts have arisen with respect to the existence of copyright in works first published or made in an enemy country during the present war, the copyright wherein would, had a state of war not existed, have vested in any person as the first owner thereof by virtue of the application to an enemy country of an Order in Council made under the Copyright Act, 1911, and it is expedient to make such provision as is hereinafter contained with respect to copyright in such works :

"Section 1.—Copyright in all such works, whether first published or made after or before the passing of this Act, shall be deemed to vest or to have vested in the Public Trustee in his capacity as custodian under the Trading with the Enemy Amendment Act, 1914; and the Public Trustee shall, subject to regulations made by the Board of Trade, have all such powers, rights, and remedies in relation to the work as such person as aforesaid would, had a state of war not existed, have had; and all copyrights so vested in the Public Trustee, and any money arising from the exercise of his rights as the owner of any such copyright, shall be dealt with by him in like manner as property vested in him under the Trading with the Enemy Amendment Act, 1914, and Section 5 of that Act as amended by any subsequent enactment shall apply accordingly. Provided that where, before the passing of this Act, any person has taken any action whereby he has incurred expenditure or liability in connexion with the reproduction or performance of any such work as aforesaid, the Public Trustee shall on application for the purpose being made within six months after the passing of this Act (i.e., February 10, 1917) grant to him a licence to reproduce or perform the work on such terms and conditions as, in the opinion of the Public Trustee, are fair and reasonable."

The so-called Emergency Legislation calls for no comment, except that, nowadays, to pay any royalties to an alien enemy in pursuance of a contract entered into before the war, or to enter now into any contract with an enemy subject for the publication of work, is an offence punishable by law.

Leaving this branch of the subject, we will now go through the main details of the all-important copyright statute upon which the statutory right in this country depends.

The Copyright Act, 1911 (1 and 2 Geo. V., c. 46), came into operation on July 1, 1912, and repealing, as it does, all the Statute law from 1734 to the present day, is of prime importance to the literary world. When supplemented by legislation in the self-governing colonies, it will form a complete code of copyright law for the whole of the British dominions. Three important series of regulations have been issued under the Act—two by the Board of Trade, on June 7, 1912 (vide Statutory Rules and Orders, 1912, Nos. 532 and 533), applicable to Sections 3 and 19 (6) of the Act; and a third series by the Commissioners of Customs and Excise, on June 19, 1912, (vide London Gazette, 1912, p. 4473), by virtue of the powers conferred on them by Section 14. The Board of Trade regulations affect the "Royalty System," but whilst No. 532, to which specific attention is drawn (vide p. 368), refers to all copyright works, No. 533 deals only with mechanical musical instruments. The regulations made by the Commissioners of Customs and Excise have application to the detention and forfeiture of copies of works, the importation of which into this country is forbidden by Section 14 of the Act.

So, after dealing with the law as altered by this Statute, and with cases decided since the last publication of the Year-Book, we shall discuss the relations of authors and publishers, and shall conclude with a brief consideration of the usual clauses in agreements ordinarily entered into between author and publisher, explaining where necessary their use and application.

One most important alteration has been made in the law for the protection of authors who have made agreements with publishers parting with copyright in their works, subject to payment of royalties.

Before the Bankruptcy and Deeds of Arrangement Act, 1913, owing to the decision in the case of "In re Grant Richards, ex parte Warwick Deeping" (1907, 2 K.B., 33), an author agreeing as above with a publisher who had the misfortune to become bankrupt, might, to his dismay find the trustee in bankruptcy of the publisher within his legal rights in publishing the author's work for the benefit of the creditors without paying him any royalty, or selling the copyright without attaching any condition as to the payment of royalties to the author. These undoubted grievances have now been remedied by Section 25 of the 1913 Bankruptcy Act, which, by reason of its importance, is here set out in extenso :

"Where the property of a bankrupt comprises the copyright in any work or any interest in such copyright, and he is liable to pay to the author of the work royalties or a share of the profits in respect thereof, the trustee in bankruptcy shall not be entitled to sell, or authorize the sale of, any copies of the work, or to perform, or authorize the performance of, the work, except on the terms of paying to the author such sums by way of royalty or share of the profits as would have been payable by the bankrupt, nor shall he, without the consent of the author or of the court, be entitled to assign the right or transfer the interest, or to grant any interest in the right by licence, except upon terms which will secure to the author payments by way of royalty or share of profits at a rate not less than that which the bankrupt was liable to pay."

I. LAW OF COPYRIGHT

It is convenient to follow the Act itself, and to deal separately with the law applicable to what is termed "Imperial Copyright"—i.e., the United Kingdom and British Possessions—and International Copyright.

I. COPYRIGHT IN BOOKS, ETC.

The new Act abrogates all common law rights (vide Section 31), and declares by Section 1 that copyright shall subsist throughout His Majesty's dominions in every original literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic work if—

1. In the case of a published work, the first publication was within His Majesty's dominions ;
2. In the case of an unpublished work, the author was at the date of the making of the work a British subject or resident within His Majesty's dominions.

"Copyright" is defined as the sole right to produce (or reproduce) the work, or any substantial part thereof, in any material form and in any language ; to perform, or, in the case of a lecture, deliver, the work or any substantial part thereof in public ; if the work is unpublished, to publish the work ; and shall include the sole right—

1. In the case of a dramatic work, to convert it into a novel or other non-dramatic work ;
2. In the case of a novel, or other non-dramatic work, or of an artistic work, to convert it into a dramatic work by performing it in public or otherwise ;
3. In the case of a literary, dramatic, or musical work, to make any record, perforated roll, cinematograph film, or other contrivance by means of which the work may be mechanically performed or delivered.

The Act concerns itself with, and affords the protection of, copyright to—

"Literary work," which includes maps, charts, plans, and tables.

In the case of Libraco, Ltd., v. Shaw Walker, Ltd. (30 T.L.R., 22), it has been decided by Warrington, J., that the cards of a card-index system having on them the words name and address and other words that might be used by anybody, but designed for facilitating the handling by employers of National Insurance cards, were not an original literary work within Sections 1 and 35 of the 1911 Copyright Act. Some guidance to the meaning of the phrase, "original literary work," has also been afforded by Bailhache, J., in the case of Byrne v. The Statist Co., Ltd. (1914, 1 K.B., 622), when in the course of his judgment he stated that it meant a literary work of which the person in whom the copyright is laid, or through whom the title to the copyright is traced, is the author. The work in question in this case was a translation.

"Dramatic work," which includes any piece for recitation, choreographic work, or entertainment in dumb show, the scenic arrangement or acting form of which is fixed in writing or otherwise, and any cinematograph production where the arrangement or acting form, or the combination of incidents represented, give the work an original character.

"Lectures," including addresses, speeches, and sermons.

"Artistic work," which includes works of painting, drawing, sculpture, and artistic craftsmanship, and architectural works of art, engravings, and photographs.

"Works of sculpture," including casts and models.

"Engravings," including etchings, lithographs, woodcuts, prints, and other similar works.

"Photographs," including photo, photo-lithographs, and any work produced by any process analogous to photography.

The case of Cescinsky v. George Routledge and Sons (1916, 2 K.B., 325) shows that the common law rule as to the right of a co-owner to use the common property, has no application as far as copyright is concerned; for Rowlatt, J. in his judgment held that, notwithstanding the defendants were part-owners of the copyright in the plaintiff's book, the plaintiff was entitled to an injunction restraining the defendants from infringing that copyright.

The decision in Broemel v. Meyer (1913, 29 T.L.R., 148) has left still open to doubt whether the mere title of a play can be treated as the subject of copyright, though in Dicks v. Yates (1881, 18 Ch.D., 76) it was held that there was no copyright in the title "Splendid Misery," the phrase being a hackneyed one. The observations of the famous Judge, Jessel M.R., in that case show that, in his view, there could be copyright in a title if such title required invention—e.g., was a literary composition.

The term for which copyright shall subsist is by the new Act—subject to special provisions as to certain works—extended by Section 3 to the life of the author and a period of fifty years after his death. To this Section there is a proviso enacting that at any time after the expiration of twenty-five years or, in the case of a work in which copyright is existent at the passing of the Act, thirty years from the death of the author of a published work, copyright shall not be deemed to be infringed by the reproduction of the work for sale if the reproducer proves—

1. That he has given notice in writing of his intention to reproduce the work;
2. That he has paid to the owner of the copyright royalties calculated at the rate of 10 per cent. on the price at which he publishes the work.

As to the terms of such notice and mode of payment of the royalties, the new Order of the Board of Trade (No. 532, June 7, 1912) is herewith set out in extenso :

The Board of Trade, in pursuance of the powers conferred by Section 3 of the Copyright Act, 1911, hereby make the following regulations:

Preliminary

1. These Regulations may be cited as the Copyright Royalty System (General Regulations, 1912), and shall come into operation on July 1, 1912.

Notice

2. The notice required by Section 3 of the Copyright Act, 1911, shall contain the following particulars:

- (a) The name and address of the person intending to reproduce the work;
- (b) The name of the work which it is intended to reproduce and (if necessary) a description sufficient to identify it;
- (c) The manner in which it is intended to reproduce the work (e.g., whether by printing, lithography, photography, etc.);
- (d) The price or prices at which it is intended to publish the work;
- (e) The earliest date at which any of the copies will be delivered to a purchaser.

3. The notice shall, not less than one month before any copies of the work are delivered to a purchaser, be sent by registered post or published by advertisement as follows:

- (a) If the name and an address within the United Kingdom of the owner of the copyright, or his agent for the receipt of notice, are known or can with reasonable diligence be ascertained, the notice shall be sent to such owner or agent at such address;
- (b) If such name and address are not known and cannot with reasonable diligence be ascertained, the notice shall be advertised in the London Gazette; the advertisement in the London Gazette shall give the particulars required by paragraphs (a) and (b) of Regulation (2), and shall also state an address from which a copy of the notice described in Regulation (2) may be obtained.

Payment of Royalties

4.—(a) Unless otherwise agreed, royalties shall be payable by means of adhesive labels purchased from the owner of the copyright and affixed to the copies of the work.

After the person reproducing the work has given the prescribed notice of his intention to reproduce the work, the owner of the copyright shall, by writing sent by registered post, intimate to him some reasonably convenient place within the United Kingdom from which adhesive labels can be obtained, and on demand in writing and tender of the price shall supply from such place adhesive labels of the required denominations at a price equal to the amount of royalty represented thereby.

Subject to these regulations, no copy of the work shall be delivered to a purchaser until such label or labels denoting the amount of royalty have been affixed thereto.

(b) In cases when royalties are payable by means of adhesive labels, if at any time labels of the required denomination are not available either because—

- (i.) After the expiration of fourteen days from the date of the prescribed notice the owner of the copyright has not only sent to the person reproducing the work an intimation of some reasonably convenient place within the United Kingdom from which such labels can be obtained; or
- (ii.) The owner of the copyright refuses or neglects to supply such labels within fourteen days after demand duly made, copies of the work may be delivered to purchasers without having labels affixed thereto; and the amount of royalties shall be a debt due from the person reproducing the work to the owner of the copyright, and the person reproducing the work shall keep an account of all such copies sold by him.

(c) For the purposes of this regulation "the date of the prescribed notice" means—

(i.) In cases when the notice is required to be sent by registered post, the date when the notice would in ordinary course of post be delivered ;

(ii.) In cases when the notice is required to be advertised in the London Gazette, the date of such advertisement.

(d) Where royalties are by agreement payable in any other mode than by means of adhesive labels the time and frequency of the payment shall be such as are specified in the agreement.

(e) The adhesive label supplied as aforesaid shall be an adhesive paper label, square in shape, the design to be entirely enclosed within a circle and the side of the label not to be greater than $\frac{3}{4}$ inch in length. The label shall not bear the effigy of the Sovereign or any other person, nor any word mark or design such as to suggest that the label is issued by or under the authority of the Government for the purpose of denoting any duty payable to the Government.

Interpretation

5. In these Regulations the expression "owner of the copyright" has the same meaning as in Section 3 of the Copyright Act, 1911.

Dated this 7th day of June, 1912.

With regard to the vexed question of what does or does not amount to a "publication" in relation to any work, the Act declares that publication means the issue of copies of the work to the public, and does not include the performance in public of a dramatic or musical work, the delivery in public of a lecture, the exhibition in public of an artistic work, or the construction of an architectural work of art ; but for the purposes of this provision the issue of photographs and engravings of works of sculpture and architectural works of art shall not be deemed to be publication of such works.

Neville, J., held in the case of Francis Day and Hunter v. Feldman and Co. (58 S.J., 654) that a song had been published in the United Kingdom, and that there was an issue of the work to the public, because, on the same date, one copy was sent to the British Museum, one filed in the plaintiff's office, four others sent to the agent for the University Libraries, and six copies exposed for sale.

As far as this point is concerned, this case has been affirmed by the Court of Appeal (L.R., 1914, 2 Ch., 728).

By the new Act the author of a work shall be the first owner of the copyright therein, but in the case of a portrait, photograph, or engraving the person who orders the same, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, shall be the first owner of the copyright (this is making previous case law into a section of the statute, vide Boucas v. Cooke [1903, 2 K.B., 227], the Boy Preacher's case). The case of Corelli v. Gray (1913, 29 T.L.R., 570)—an action for the infringement of the plaintiff's copyright in a novel named "Temporal Power" by the performance of a sketch entitled "The People's King"—is not without interest in this relation, having regard to the dicta of Sargant, J. "Under the new act," said the learned Judge, "as under the former law, no absolute monopoly is given to authors analogous to that conferred on inventors of patents—i.e., if it could be shown as a matter of fact that two precisely similar works were in fact produced wholly independently of another. I do not think that the author of the work that was published first would be entitled to restrain the publication by the other author of that author's independent and original work. The right appears to be merely a negative right to prevent the appropriation of the labours of an author by another." This decision has been upheld on appeal, and the judgment of Cozens Hardy, M.R., is interesting to the literary world by reason of the following passage: "The result of the new Act was to give protection not merely to the form of the words in a novel, but to the situations contained in it."

Any person who, under a contract of service or apprenticeship, is the author of a work will find, in the absence of his making an agreement to the contrary, that the law vests the copyright of such work in his employer. But where the work is an article or other contribution to a newspaper, magazine, or periodical, there shall, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, be deemed to be reserved to the author a right to restrain the publication of the work otherwise than as part of a newspaper, magazine, or periodical.

Delivery of Books to Libraries

One complete copy of every book published (unless a new edition is a mere reissue without change) must be delivered gratuitously within one month of publication by the publisher (1) to the British Museum without demand; and on written demand if made within twelve months after publication to (2) the Bodleian Library, Oxford; (3) the University Library, Cambridge; (4) the Library of the Faculty of Advocates at Edinburgh; (5) the Library of Trinity College, Dublin; and, subject to certain regulations [vide No. 635 Statutory Rules and Orders, 1912]; (6) the National Library of Wales. Default exposes the publisher to a £5 penalty and the value of the book.

These provisions, so onerous to the publisher, have been lightened as far as the British Museum is concerned by the Copyright (British Museum) Act, 1915 (5 and 6 George V., cap. 38). By this new statute the Board of Trade may, on the application of the Trustees for the British Museum, make regulations exempting the delivery to the Museum of publications wholly or mainly in the nature of trade advertisements, or such classes of such publications as may be specified in the regulations, unless a written demand for delivery is made by the Trustees.

Registration of Books

Under the Copyright Act of 1842 the law provided for the keeping at Stationers' Hall of a register where the proprietorship in the copyright of books and the assignments of licences affecting such copyright might be registered, and in the new Act in its original form similar provisions were to be found. The clauses, however, were struck out in Committee; and as the Act now stands the Copyright Act of 1842 is repealed, and no new sections dealing with this form of protection to copyright appear.

The change from the old law was brought into prominence by the case of Evans v. Morris (1913, W.N., 58), where a Divisional Court of Phillimore and Pickford, J.Js., held that registration is still necessary to enable a copyright owner to sue subsequently to July 1, 1912, in respect of infringements that have taken place before the new Copyright Act came into force.

This decision, if correct, seems to debar all owners of copyright who have not registered at Stationers' Hall prior to July 1, 1912, from all rights of action in respect of infringements that have occurred before that date.

Assignment of Right

An owner may assign his interest wholly or partially, or subject to limitations to any particular country to which the Act extends; but no such assignment will be valid unless it is in writing signed by the owner or his agent. But where the assignor is the first owner of the copyright (being the author), no assignment shall be operative for more than twenty-five years from the death of the author, and such author cannot by such an assignment deprive his legal and personal representatives of their rights in the reversionary interest of such copyright.

Infringements of Copyright

These are committed—

1. By publication in the United Kingdom of an unauthorized edition, or importation for sale of foreign reprints, of a copyright work—i.e., literary piracy.
2. By the illegitimate appropriation of another's literary labour—i.e., literary larceny.

Civil Remedies for Infringement

The statute of 1911 by Section 6 preserves all the remedies by way of damages injunction (in Scotland an interdict), and accounts for infringement of copyright; but if a defendant alleges in his defence and proves at the trial that he was not aware, and had not reasonable means of making himself aware, that copyright subsisted in the work, the plaintiff can only get an injunction against him and not damages.

The property in infringing copies is by Section 7 given to the owner of the copyright, who may bring an action claiming that the possession of such copies should be handed over to him.

Limitations of Action

Any such actions as above must be brought within three years of the infringement.

Other Remedies

The new Act provides for the United Kingdom summary remedies in the police court against any person who knowingly—

1. Makes for sale or hire any infringing copy of a work in which copyright subsists; or
2. Sells or lets for hire or by way of trade exposes or offers for sale or hire any infringing copy; or
3. Distributes infringing copies for the purposes of trade or to such an extent as to affect prejudicially the owner of the copyright;
4. Imports for sale or hire into the United Kingdom any infringing copy.

For any of these four offences the Court may impose a penalty not exceeding 40s. for every copy dealt with, but not exceeding £50 in respect of the same transaction. Further, if any person knowingly makes, or has in his possession, any plate for the purpose of making infringing copies, the Court may order such plates or copies of the work in the possession of the alleged offender (whether he be convicted or not) to be forfeited or destroyed.

Infringement and Fair Use

Copyright in a work shall be deemed to be infringed by anyone who, without the consent of the owner of the copyright, does anything the sole right to do which is vested in the owner of the copyright, but the following exceptions are made and do not (so says the new law) amount to infringements:

1. Any fair dealing with any work for the purposes of private study, research, criticism, review, or newspaper summary.

2. The publication in a newspaper of a lecture delivered in public, unless the report is prohibited by a notice conspicuously placed in the building where the lecture is held.

3. The publication in a collection mainly composed of non-copyright matter intended for the use of schools of short passages from works in which copyright subsists, provided that not more than two of such passages from works by the same author are published by the same publisher within five years, and that the source from which such passages are taken is acknowledged.

4. The reading or recitation in public by one person of any reasonable extract from any published work.

It is not an infringement of copyright to publish a report in a newspaper of an address of a political nature delivered at a public meeting. So with these extensions the law stands much as it did.

Fair use, however, may be made of even copyright works of other authors in the composition or compilation of new books, but the new work must be substantially the result of independent labour and research. Thus the text for a new edition of old MSS. in the British Museum must not be copied from an existing copyright edition, but from the MSS. (Parry v. Moring, an unreported decision of Mr. Justice Farwell in 1903, the case of the Letters of Dorothy Osborne). An abridgement may or may not be an infringement of copyright, according to the use made of the original work. In compiling "anthologies," no use whatever must be made of copyright works without first obtaining permission of the owner of the copyright.

II. SPECIAL PROVISIONS AS TO CERTAIN WORKS

In the case of joint authorship, copyright shall subsist during the life of the author who first dies, and for fifty years after, or during the life of the author who dies last, whichever period is the longer.

If a married woman and her husband collaborate, her interest in the joint publication shall be her separate property.

In the case of posthumous works copyright shall subsist till publication or performance or delivery in public, and for a term of fifty years afterwards.

In the case of Government publications the copyright of which has been vested in the Crown, copyright shall subsist for fifty years from the date of first publication. (But vide Treasury Minute, June 28, 1912, Parl. Paper [292], as to how far this is being insisted upon.)

III. COPYRIGHT IN DRAMATIC PIECES

This copyright comprises two separate rights, the first dealing with copyright in the author's work as written matter, and the second with the copyright in such work as represented on the stage or otherwise to the public.

Right of Publication and Public Performance

The law when the new Act passed was the same as that of copyright in books in respect of these matters, as also the time of limitation for actions or proceedings for infringement, etc.

Every unauthorized representation of a dramatic piece, or other infringement of the copyright therein, exposes the offender to an action for damages and an injunction, and, by Section 2 of the Copyright Act, the copyright shall also be deemed to be infringed by any person who for his private profit permits a theatre, or other place of entertainment, to be used for the performance in public of a copyright play without the consent of the owner of the copyright, unless he proves that he was not aware and had no reasonable grounds for suspecting that the performance would be an infringement of copyright.

Assignment

Writing of the author or his agent is necessary. Partial assignment is now legally possible in dramatic as in other works—i.e., the right of translation may be assigned to one individual, and the right of performance to another.

No assignment after December 16, 1911, of works (other than "collective works") can take away the right of the author's personal representative to the copyright after twenty-five years have elapsed from the death of the author, in cases where the author is the first owner of the copyright. A sole licence to produce does not amount in law to an assignment of the acting rights (Neilson v. Horniman, 1909, 25 T.L.R., 684).

Compulsory Licence

In dramatic, as in literary or musical work, it is now provided that at any time after the death of the author of a work which has been published or performed in public, if complaint is made to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council that the owner of the copyright has refused to republish himself or allow the republication of such work, and that by such refusal the work is withheld from the public, the owner of the copyright may be ordered to grant a licence to reproduce or perform the work in public on such terms as the Judicial Committee may think fit.

IV. COPYRIGHT IN MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS

This copyright is analogous to the copyright in dramatic pieces, and in like manner comprises—

1. Right of publication in print.
2. Right of public performance.

1. Right of Publication in Print

The law is the same as that of copyright in books (ante, q.v.), except in the following particulars: Before the Act it was decided that perforated music sheets for use in a mechanical piano or organ are not copies of music, and copyright gives no protection against the reproduction of music in this manner (Boosey v. Whight, [1900] 1 Ch., 122, music for an Æolian organ).

In 1912 it was held by the Court of Appeal that the composer of the music of a song, after the song has been published, has no common law remedy against an unauthorized person who copies the music of the song on to sheets of vulcanized rubber and publishes and sells such sheets as gramophone records (Monckton v. Gramophone Company [1912] 1 Ch., 122).

Now, however, the new statute enacts that copyright shall subsist in records, perforated rolls, and other contrivances by means of which sounds are produced, just as if such contrivances were musical works, the term of such copyright being fifty years from the making of the original plate; and the person who was the owner of the original plate shall be deemed to be the owner of the copyright.

Copyright shall subsist in respect of all rolls made before the commencement of the new Act, and after the passing of the Act it shall not be an infringement of copyright to make perforated rolls or other contrivances for the production of sound if you can prove—

1. That such contrivances were previously made with the consent of the owner of the copyright;

2. That you have given notice of your intention to make such contrivances and paid the royalties which are fixed by the statute.

In either case you may neither alter nor omit portions from the work, unless records were previously made with the consent of the owner of the copyright containing such alterations or omissions, or unless the alterations are necessary for the adaptation of the work. The Court of Appeal has recently decided that one cannot, without infringing copyright, sell gramophone records of an original musical work, though such records were manufactured and imported into this country before the coming into operation of the Copyright Act, 1911—i.e., before July 1, 1912. (Monckton v. Pathé Frères Pathéphone, Ltd., [1914] 1 K.B., 395.) The adaptation of a copyright song for the purpose of obtaining a gramophone record by making a manuscript orchestral accompaniment of the song, was held by Neville, J., to be an infringement of copyright. "The purpose for which a copy is made does not exonerate," said the learned Judge, "even though the creation of the gramophone record was no infringement of the author's rights." (Chappell and Co., Ltd., v. Columbia Gramophone Co. This decision has been affirmed by the Court of Appeal (1914, 2 Ch., 745). ,

In addition to the same remedies for infringement of copyright as in the case of books, in the case of music under the statute 2 Edward VII., c. 15, a constable was empowered, by order of a magistrate, or on the written request of the owner of the copyright, to seize pirated copies, and the magistrate may order their destruction or delivery up, but not a perforated music roll for a piano-player (Mabe v. Connor, 1909, 1 K.B., 515). Technical difficulties as to applying this statute arose—mainly owing to the decision of the Divisional Court that a summons must be first served on the hawker or other offender (ex parte Francis (1903, 1 K.B., 275)). An Act with more stringent provisions received the Royal Assent in August, 1906, by which "every person who prints, reproduces, or sells, or exposes, offers, or has in his possession for sale any pirated copies of music, or has in his possession plates for reproducing pirated copies of music, shall (unless he proves that he acted innocently) be guilty of an offence "punishable summarily, and he will be liable to be fined £5, and on a second or subsequent conviction to be imprisoned or fined £10. It is also enacted that any constable may take into custody without warrant any person who sells, exposes, offers, or has in his possession for sale any pirated copies of any such music as may be specified in a writing addressed to the Chief of Police, and signed by the apparent owner of the copyright or his agent, requesting the arrest, at the risk of such owner, of all offenders against the Act. And a search warrant may be granted in the case of suspected premises. These remedies are not abolished by the new Copyright Act.

V. COPYRIGHT IN ENGRAVINGS AND THE LIKE

The Act of 1911, repealing as it does the greater part of the Fine Arts Copyright Act, 1862, places the copyright in the fine arts in a position similar to that of literary publications, with the following exceptions: that the making or publishing of paintings, drawings, engravings, or photographs of a work of sculpture or artistic craftsmanship shall not constitute an infringement of copyright if the said artistic productions from which copies are being made are permanently situated in a public place or building.

The result of this clause appears to be that any picture presented to or acquired by a public art gallery will from the time of being hung be deprived of the protection of the Copyright Act.

By Section 9 it is enacted that where the construction of a building or other structure occurs which infringes, or would when completed infringe, the copyright in some other work, the owner of the copyright shall not be entitled to obtain an injunction or interdict to restrain such construction.

The same provision as to the duration of copyright in respect of posthumous literary, dramatic, or musical work is made in the case of posthumous engravings.

The term for which copyright shall subsist in photographs is specifically provided for in Section 21, and is stated to be fifty years from the making of the original negative; and the person who was the owner of such negative at the time when it was made shall be deemed to be the author of the work; and when such owner is a body corporate (e.g., a company), the body corporate shall be deemed to reside within the territorial extent of the Act, if it has established a place of business within such parts.

The moot question in copyright law as to whether an author's rights in his drawings or paintings are infringed by "living picture" reproductions, has this year been decided by Coleridge, J., in the author's favour, on a claim for damages for infringement of copyright in certain well-known cartoons from Punch, by exhibiting the cartoons in the form of living pictures in a revue (vide Bradbury, Agnew and Co. v. Day, 32 T.L.R., 349) "Before 1911," said Coleridge, J., "the law protected the design, which meant the particular form in which the idea of the author was embodied, and since 1911 the law has protected that embodiment whatever be the medium in which it is expressed."

Penalties for Fraudulent Productions and Sales

Section 7 of the Act of 1862 is not repealed, and actions may be brought for penalties—up to £10 for every offence with forfeiture of piratical copies and negatives—in respect of repeating or copying for sale, hire, or exhibition and distribution, or knowingly importing, selling, publishing unlawful copies, or causing any such thing to be done.

Actions for damages, with forfeiture of piratical copies, in respect of the same matters.

Actions for injunction to restrain future infringements. Penalties and forfeitures may be enforced by action or summarily.

Under this Section 7, Clause (4), Mr. Justice Channell decided in the case of Carlton Illustrators and Jones v. Coleman and Co. (1911, 1 K.B., 771) that the defendants were not entitled to enlarge and colour without the plaintiff Jones's consent a fine line drawing which the plaintiff had prepared for the defendants for advertisement purposes and for which he had been paid, the copyright thereby vesting in the defendants. Mr. Justice Channell held that, as the alteration in the drawing might be damaging to the plaintiff's reputation as an artist, the defendants had committed a breach of Section 7. The defendants simply acquired the copyright in the drawing; and as there was no contract to publish a reproduction of the drawing in any particular form other than that which they would have as the owners of the copyright, the section had been infringed.

VI. THE APPLICATION OF THE NEW ACT TO BRITISH POSSESSIONS

The Act, except where specific provision is made to the contrary, is operative throughout the whole of His Majesty's dominions, with the exception of the self-governing Colonies, and they, if they so desire, may adopt the Act en bloc, or with such modifications or additions relating exclusively to procedure and remedies as may adapt the Act to their local circumstances. Any British possession may also pass supplemental legislation to the Act, but it shall only be applicable to the works of authors who were resident in the possession at the time of making the work and to works first published in the possession. The self-governing Colonies are stated in the Act to be the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, and Newfoundland. His Majesty may by Order in Council extend the Act to Protectorates, including that of Cyprus.

This was done by Order in Council of June 24, 1912, and Cyprus and the Protectorates of Bechuanaland, East Africa, Gambia, Gilbert and Ellice Islands, Northern Nigeria, Northern Territories of the Gold Coast, Nyasaland, Northern and Southern Rhodesia, Sierra Leone, Somaliland, Southern Nigeria, Solomon Islands, Swaziland, Uganda, and Weihaiwei became subject to the provisions of the Copyright Act, 1911.

By Section 26 the Legislature of any self-governing dominion may at any time repeal the Act, and on so doing ceases to be a dominion to which the Act extends, but it is provided that, where the copyright laws of any self-governing dominion to which the Act does not extend provides adequate protection within the dominion for the works (whether published or not) of authors who are British subjects resident elsewhere than in that dominion, an Order in Council may issue in this country for the purposes of giving reciprocal protection.

COLONIAL COPYRIGHT

The Colonial Copyright Act, 1847 (sometimes called the Foreign Reprints Act), and the International Copyright Act, 1886, are repealed by the new Copyright Act, and it remains to be seen how far the self-governing dominions will adopt our new copyright code. We give below a short résumé of the law as it obtains in Canada, Australia, and other Colonies.

CANADIAN LAW

The Canada Copyright Act, 1875, gives Imperial sanction to the provisions of an Act of the Canadian Parliament putting the law of copyright in Canada on an independent basis, but prohibits the importation of Canadian reprints of English copyright books.

The Canadian Act enables the author of a literary or artistic work domiciled in Canada, or in any part of the British possessions, or being a citizen of any country, having an international copyright treaty with the United Kingdom, to obtain copyright in Canada for twenty-eight years, by publication or republication in Canada under certain specified conditions.

This copyright is in addition to, and concurrent with, copyright under the British statute of 1842, the rights under which are not interfered with by the Imperial and Canadian Acts of 1875. The latter Act is now replaced and substantially re-enacted by the revised statutes of Canada, 1886, cap. 62, cited in Canada as 'the Copyright Act,' and the Revised Statutes, 1906, cap. 70. Next came an abortive Act of the Canadian Parliament in 1889, requiring publication or republication in Canada as a condition of copyright. This Act is a dead-letter, because it has never been proclaimed by the Governor-General, and was not to come into force until so proclaimed. Finally, a more moderate step in the same direction was taken in 1900 by the Canadian Copyright Act, 1900, which provides that, when the owner of the copyright in a work first published in some part of the Empire other than Canada has lawfully granted a license to reproduce it in Canada, then, notwithstanding anything in 'the Copyright Act,' the Minister of Agriculture may prohibit the importation into Canada of any copies printed elsewhere, and the Act directs the seizure and forfeiture of all books imported in contravention of the Act, and imposes a penalty for unlawful importation. The intention, of course, is to stop the importation into Canada of copies of the English edition of a book, and so to give the grantee in Canada of the author's Canadian rights a monopoly of the Canadian market. It has been suggested that the Act of 1900 is in conflict with the British law of copyright, in that it derogates from the right to sell copies throughout the Empire, and its validity has been questioned by text-writers. See Dr. Briggs's Law of International Copyright, p. 615.

This work, which was published in 1906, may be welcomed as a valuable addition to the contributions of English text-writers to the exposition of the law of international copyright.

On April 26, 1911, Mr. Fisher brought forward in the Canadian House a new Copyright Bill, which has been much criticized, rightly or wrongly, as legislating against the Canadian author for the advantage of Canadian printers. By this new Bill the term of copyright is to be the life of the author and fifty years after his death, but "every copy of a work published in Canada shall be printed or made in Canada, and shall bear the notice of copyright."

The Bill also contains clauses making registration imperative in order to establish a title to copyright. This provision, as has already been pointed out, has no place in our new copyright law, and in fact has been abandoned by most modern legislatures. Mr. Fisher by his speech introductory of the Bill appears to have conveyed the impression that Canada was prepared to strike out on a line of her own as far as international copyright was concerned; the obstacle to Canada joining the International Union being the difficulty that any author who makes first publication in the Union, no matter to what country he may belong, shall have copyright throughout the Union.

With regard to British subjects resident elsewhere than in Canada, Mr. Fisher's Bill—in spite of the fact that the printing of a work in Canada is stated to be a condition precedent to copyright—by Clause 34 seems to grant copyright to any author if he is a bona fide British subject who publishes first in Great Britain or any of the Colonies. Mr. Fisher's Bill, however, has never become law, and up to the present Canada has not legislated independently of, or adopted, our 1911 Copyright Act, but, as stated above, our old Copyright Act of 1842 is still law in the Dominion, leading to many disadvantages which a statute drafted in uniformity with the main ideas of our 1911 Act could speedily remove. Newfoundland, by Act No. 5 of 1912, has adopted our law.

AUSTRALIAN LAW

The Royal Assent was given on November 20, 1912, to the Commonwealth of Australia's new Copyright Act. The Act, which repeals the 1905 law, contains forty-two sections, and adopts, subject to modifications, our 1911 legislation. The chief difference to be noted, however, is that Australia has preserved the registration of copyright system. True, such registration is optional, but in order to avail oneself of the powerful summary remedies provided by Sections 15, 16, and 17 of the Act, one must be a registered owner. The following Registers of Copyrights are to be kept by the Registrar at the Copyright Office:—

1. Register of Literary (including Dramatic and Musical) Copyrights.
2. Register of Fine Arts Copyrights.
3. Register of International and State Copyrights.

The Governor-General has, by the Act vested in him, the same powers as the Board of Trade under Section 3 of our Act, and may make all regulations, not inconsistent with the Act, for the due carrying out of its provisions.

Such regulations, fifty-three in number, and split up into four parts dealing with (1) General matters; (2) Royalty system (general); (3) Royalty system (mechanical musical contrivances); (4) Repeal; were made and issued by the Governor-General on December 19, 1913.

NEW ZEALAND LAW

New Zealand, by her Copyright Act of 1913, has fallen into line with Australia and Newfoundland in accepting our Copyright Act of 1911. The Act (consisting of fifty-four sections) differs from our own and resembles Australia's legislation in setting up an optional registration which is likely to be universally utilized, as only a registered owner can avail himself of the privileges of summary remedies for infringement, and the seizure of infringing copies, and a right to search premises where such copies are supposed to be.

INDIAN LAW

The Indian Copyright Act, 1914, being a Bill to modify and add to the provisions of the Copyright Act, 1911, is now a part of the Indian Statute Law. The Act extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan, the district of Angul, and the Sonthal Parganas, and calls for little comment, as it differs hardly at all from our own Copyright Act which became law in India by Proclamation in 1912. One material difference, however, is worthy of notice, affecting, though it does, chiefly native authors. "In the case of works first published in British India, copyright shall be subject to this limitation, that the sole right to produce, reproduce, perform, or publish a translation of the work shall subsist only for a period of ten years from the date of the first publication of the work, provided that, if within the said period the author or any person to whom he has granted permission so to do, publishes a translation of any such work in any language, copyright in such work as regards the sole right to produce, reproduce, perform, or publish a translation in that language shall not be subject to the limitation prescribed in this sub-section" (Section 4).

GENERALLY

In addition to the Order in Council referred to on p. 380, the 1911 Act has during 1913 been proclaimed in the following places: Jamaica, Turk's Island, British Honduras, British Guiana, Bahamas, Trinidad, Tobago, Barbados, the Windward Islands, Leeward Islands, Malta, Gibraltar, Hong Kong, Straits Settlements, Ceylon, Labuan, Mauritius, Seychelles, British India, Burma, and Fiji.

A number of other colonies have local copyright laws of their own, and whenever that is the case, 'the conditions of protection which affect works first published in any of these must be sought in two bodies of law—in the Acts of the British Parliament, as regards their protection throughout all parts of the British dominions except the colony of first publication, and in the Acts or Ordinances of the Colonial legislative authority, as regards their protection within the territory of that colony itself' (Dr. Briggs's Law of International Copyright, p. 504).

But copyright acquired in respect of literary works published in the United Kingdom, extending to every part of the British dominions, is, of course, entitled to protection in any of these Colonies.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT

The International Copyright Acts of 1844, 1852, 1875, and 1886, are all repealed by the new Act, which in Section 29 enacts that it may be directed by Order in Council that the Copyright Act, 1911, or such parts of it as may be specified, shall apply—

1. To works first published in a foreign country in like manner as if they were first published within His Majesty's dominions;

2. To literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic works the authors of which were at the time of the making subjects or citizens of a foreign country as if they were British subjects;

3. In respect of residence in any foreign country to which the Order relates as if such residence were residence in His Majesty's dominions.

But before making any Order in Council under this section in respect of any foreign country (other than a country with which His Majesty has entered into a convention relating to copyright), the authorities must be satisfied that that foreign country has made or has undertaken to make the expedient provisions for the protection of works entitled to copyright under our new Act.

By Order in Council of June 24, 1912, the protection of the Copyright Act, 1911, as above specified, was extended to Austria-Hungary.

By Section 30 these clauses of Section 29 are made operative in British possessions, and the Governor-in-Council of any self-governing dominion may make like orders in respect of that dominion.

THE COPYRIGHT UNION

The Berne Convention, revised in 1908, aims at securing reciprocity of copyright on uniform lines. It applies to most of the great countries of Europe and to Japan, but not to Austria and Hungary or to Russia or Turkey, and the contracting States are called the Copyright Union. It is provided that other countries may accede to the Convention. Germany, Belgium, Denmark, Spain, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Liberia, Luxembourg, Monaco, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, and Tunis were signatories to the revised convention; and Holland and its colonies have now become members of the Copyright Union.

Italy, however, it must be noted, signed the Revised Convention subject to reservations as to translating rights, and performing rights as regard translations. Her copyright relations with this country depend on the Orders in Council of June 24, 1912, and March 23, 1915.

Holland passed a Copyright Act of her own in 1912, which has been amended as to article 50 by a new statute of Oct. 16, 1914. The effect of the amendment, which has been pressed for by Dutch publishers, appears to be an extension from two to three years of the power to sell reproductions published before Nov. 1, 1912, as also subsequently manufactured copies.

In March, 1914, a new protocol was added to the Convention providing that when a country not belonging to the Union fails properly to protect the works of authors belonging to one of the countries of the Union, the provisions of the Union shall in no wise interfere with the contracting country's right to limit the protection of works whose authors are subjects or citizens of such foreign country, and not regularly domiciled in one of the countries of the Union.

By Order in Council of June 24, 1912 (Statutory Rules and Orders, 1912, No. 913), the protection of the Copyright Act, 1911, is, subject to the provisions of that Act, extended to Belgium, Denmark, and the Faroë Islands, France, Germany and the German Protectorates, Hayti, Italy, Japan, Liberia, Luxemburg, Monaco, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, and Tunis. This—the principal—order was, on March 17, 1913 (Statutory Rules and Orders, 1913, No. 330), in part revoked with regard to Denmark, but the provisions contained in Article (2), proviso (iii.) (a) of the Order were extended to Japan. The principal Order was also, on March 17, 1913 (Statutory Rules and Orders, 1913, No. 331), made applicable, subject to certain modifications, to the Netherlands, on April 11 to the Dutch East Indies and the Colony of Curaçao, and on June 13 to Surinam (Statutory Rules and Orders, 1913, Nos. 482 and 694).

Term of Copyright

The term of protection granted by the present convention includes the life of the author and fifty years after his death, but the contracting countries shall only be bound to apply this provision in so far as it does not conflict with their own laws. Photographic and the public performances of dramatic and musical works are included in this revised convention, and the authors of literary, scientific, or artistic works shall have the exclusive right of authorizing the reproduction of their works by cinematograph. Cinematograph productions shall also be protected as literary or artistic works if the work has, by its arrangement of acting or combination of incidents represented, a personal or original character.

Remedy for Infringement Abroad

An English author desiring to stop infringement of his copyright in a foreign country must pursue his remedy in the foreign court.

Registration

Neither registration of the work nor the deposit of any copy will be required of a work produced in a foreign country in the Copyright Union.

TRANSLATIONS

The authors of unpublished works being subjects or citizens of one of the countries of the Union, and the authors of works first published in one of those countries, shall enjoy in the other countries of the Union, during the whole term of the right in the original work, the exclusive right of making or authorizing a translation of their works.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT IN THE COLONIES

- Works produced in India or the colonies enjoy copyright in the countries in the Copyright Union.

COUNTRIES OUTSIDE THE COPYRIGHT UNION

There is a separate convention between Austria and Hungary and the United Kingdom on the same lines as the Berne Convention (vide the Order in Council, June 24, 1912 [Statutory Rules and Orders, 1912, No. 914]).

COPYRIGHT IN RUSSIA

The new copyright law of Russia received Imperial confirmation on March 20, 1911, and became law. The term of copyright is life and fifty years, and, subject to certain exceptions, registration is not required. An author is considered by Russian law the owner of his own work when such work is done for an employer. To qualify for Russian copyright, there appears to be no necessity, as in England, that the work should be 'original.' Copyright exists either in published or unpublished work, and foreigners, with regard to unpublished works, if they are the original authors, are entitled to copyright in such works wherever made, but in published works only if such works are published in Russia.

COPYRIGHT IN THE UNITED STATES

English authors can now obtain copyright for their literary and artistic productions in the United States under the Chace Act of 1891 and the President's proclamation; but as regards books and photographs, chromos and lithographs, two copies, which are required to be sent to the Librarian of Congress, have to be 'printed from type set within the limits of the United States, or from plates made therefrom, or from negatives or drawings on stone made within the limits of the United States, or from transfers made therefrom.' A further Act of Congress of March 4, 1909, has been passed to amend and consolidate the Acts respecting copyright, and the benefits of that Act are expressly limited by Section 8 to : (a) When an alien author or proprietor shall be domiciled within the United States at the time of the first publication of his work ; or (b) when the foreign state or nation, of which such author or proprietor is a citizen or subject, grants, either by treaty, convention, agreement, or law to citizens of the United States the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as to its own citizens, or copyright protection substantially equal to the protection secured to such foreign author under this Act, or by treaty, or when such foreign State or nation is a party to an international agreement which provides for reciprocity in the granting of copyright, by the terms of which agreement the United States may at its pleasure become a party. The existence of such reciprocal conditions shall be determined by proclamation of the President. On April 9, 1910, President Taft, by proclamation of that date, declared the benefits of the Act of 1909 available to Great Britain and her possessions in consequence of this country having allowed to Americans the benefits of copyright here on substantially the same basis as Englishmen. Similar privileges by this proclamation were granted to other countries.

The hiatus in this proclamation with regard to the protection of the musical works of British subjects from infringement by reproduction by mechanical means has now been removed by President Wilson's Proclamation of Jan. 1, 1915. As some return for this concession, an important Order in Council of Feb. 3, 1915, was published in this country to provide protection within His Majesty's dominions for the unpublished works of citizens of the United States of America. The order provides that the Copyright Act, 1911, including the provisions as to existing works, shall, subject to the provisions of the Act and of this Order, apply (a) to literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic works, the authors whereof were, at the time of the making of the works, citizens of the United States, in like manner as if the authors had been British subjects; (b) in respect of residence in the United States, in like manner as if such residence had been residence in the parts of His Majesty's Dominions to which the Act extends.

It is further provided by the Order that the term of copyright is not to exceed that conferred by the law of the United States; that the enjoyment of the rights conferred by the Order are to be subject to the accomplishment of the conditions and formalities prescribed by United States law. The Order came into operation on Jan. 1, 1915, and must be remembered as affecting only the unpublished works of American citizens.

An American author, therefore, in order to obtain copyright in England, must first publish in England, or in England and the United States simultaneously.

The Copyright Law of 1909 alters the former statutory provisions permitting the filing in advance of the title of a dramatic work before the deposit of finished copies of the work.

One important amendment has been made to this Law of 1909 by an Act of Congress of March 28, 1914, providing that, in the case of a work by an author who is a subject or citizen of a foreign nation or state, and that work has been published in a foreign country, one complete copy of the best edition then published in such foreign country (in lieu of two copies as was formerly the case) shall be promptly deposited in the Copyright Office at Washington and copyright protection secured thereby, if there has been, of course, the necessary "publication with notice" under Section 9.

This amendment of the law applies to books, dramas, music, maps, photographs, prints, and all other works published in a foreign country, which are not required by the copyright laws to be printed or manufactured in the United States in order to secure copyright protection in the United States.

Copyright relations have been established between the United States and the following countries, and the citizens or subjects of such countries can secure copyright protection in the United States upon compliance with the requirements of the Copyright Acts of the United States: Austria, Belgium, Chili, China, Costa Rica, Cuba, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain and her Possessions, Guatemala, Honduras, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Luxemburg, Mexico, Netherlands and Possessions, Nicaragua, Norway, Portugal, Salvador, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, and Tunis.

An important decision was reached by the Board of United States General Appraisers in March, 1908, with reference to the duty on imported sheets, reversing a previous ruling. The new ruling is as follows: Books of foreign authors published in the United States are subject to no duty upon royalty. Books printed and bound abroad are subject to duty upon the entire royalty paid thereon. Sheets printed abroad and bound and finished into books in the United States are subject only to duty upon the percentage of royalty applicable to the parts involved.

(For particulars of who may secure copyright, registration, and the procedure to be followed, assignment, subject-matter of copyright, and fees, vide 'Rules and Regulations for the Registration of Claims to Copyright, Bulletin No. 15,' issued by the Copyright Office, Washington, 1910)

II. AUTHOR, PUBLISHER, AND AGENT

IN the foregoing paragraphs a brief exposition has been given of the law which governs the barter of literary property. Author and publisher should know the essential facts of copyright law, if for no other reason than because a lawyer is seldom or never called in to draft an agreement between these parties. The assistance of the law is invoked in almost every similar relation. In buying or leasing a house a man would be extremely ill-advised if he failed to consult his solicitor, but in buying or leasing a book the author is content to rely on the printed form of agreement (varying between different publishers but very slightly in wording), which he exchanges with the publisher, and which is subject to stamp duty.

GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS

We propose now to consider what kinds of agreement these are, but before we discuss their clauses in detail a few general observations may be made. Between the writing of a book and its publication a large number of processes intervene, many of which have been obscured rather than illuminated by recent controversial discussions. Let us try to unravel them a little:

1. A publisher must be found, either directly or by means of an agent.
2. Terms of publication must be discussed and agreed between the interested parties.

At this point the publisher's task may be said properly to begin, and, in view of recent statements and conjectures on the matter, it may fairly be urged that authors are apt to under-estimate the share due to a publisher in the successful production of their books. It is not merely that he employs the printers and the binders, thus taking the responsibility of format and of taste; his generic function consists in the distribution of the book, when published, by means of travellers and advertisement and other agencies of sale. Above all, in the vast majority of instances, he pays the initial cost. An author may write another book, and either recover his lost or establish his unmade reputation, but when a publisher has lost his money on a book, he has been—stupid and over-confident, perhaps, but at least—unfortunate in the business on which he depends for his livelihood. And ill speculation of this kind is bound to fall to the lot even of a Daniel among book judges. Hence, in his trade, as in others, the profits on successful trading must go towards the recoupment of losses and bad debts, else there would be no margin for enterprise.

The author should remember, too, that all the business side of the transaction falls on the publisher; he is the intermediary between his own bookshelves and the public. The complicated questions of trade discounts, travellers' commissions, booksellers' terms, and so forth, have all to be dealt with by the publisher, who must at the same time be a man of some literary attainments, inasmuch as his operations extend from the manuscript of the author—or, rather, as it should always be, from the 'copy' fresh from the typewriter—to the last ramifications of selling the published book. Apart from works of pure scholarship, for which ex hypothesi not large sales are anticipated, the most 'successful' books, in the sense of remunerative commercial ventures, often owe as big a debt to the publisher's expert knowledge and suggestions and to his business abilities as to the author himself.

Till a few years ago there was no recognized intermediary between the author and the publisher, and in those more spacious days of less specialized functions the publisher was often his own printer and his own bookbinder as well. The tendency of the present day, however, is to narrow the publisher's sphere more and more to the business side. A class of agents has sprung up who take the literary side of publishers' work more and more out of the hands of the publishers. Under these conditions the modern author rarely brings his book direct to the publisher's office. He tends to commit it to an agent, whose business it becomes to find a suitable publisher, and to arrange on the author's behalf fair terms of publication. In this tendency of things two obvious facts must be noted : first, the publishers lose touch with the authors whose works they bring out, and, secondly, a great responsibility rests on the literary agent. The author, accordingly, has to deal with two intervening 'middlemen' between his MS. and his readers, and the protection of the Author's Society is almost as frequently sought against agents as against publishers.

THE AGENCY CLAUSE

The author should be warned against a clause, sometimes introduced into agents' agreements, which requires him to pay the agent a commission, not merely on the book under discussion, but on future books which the author may write during a stated term of years. Cases have not been unknown in which, when one book has been launched with more of promise than of profit in its record, the publisher has suggested to the author the exact lines and scope on which a second book should be written in order to insure a genuine success. And when all the preliminaries have been settled, and the author and publisher together have arranged for the production of a book for their joint and mutual advantage, the agent has then intervened under a clause in his first agreement, and has claimed a commission on the proceeds of the book in which from start to finish he had no part nor parcel. This strikes us as an excessive price to pay for the agent's first service, and as distinctly unfair to author and publisher alike. Indeed, we would go further than this, and urge that an agent's work stands for all practical purposes on the same level as a solicitor's. He is called in by the author to carry through certain negotiations, and at the close of these negotiations he should be required to send in his bill. He should in no case, or in only the most exceptional cases, be entitled to deduct a percentage from the author's profits in the form of a commission on the agent's preliminary work in finding a publisher for the book and in arranging the terms of publication. The 'agency clause' in particular, which entitles the agent to 'collect and receive all moneys due under the terms of this agreement,' and which acknowledges the agent's receipt as a good and valid discharge, should be signed only with the utmost caution. It ties the author to the agent through the whole career of the book ; it effectually prevents that rapprochement between the author and the publisher, and keeps the publisher at arm's length, to the detriment of a relationship which which be useful to both. Many reputable publishers argue that the 'agency clause' acts as a deterrent to that whole-hearted co-operation with the author and that mutual confidence and harmony which are at the bottom of commercial success; and though some go too far in the opposite direction, and commit all the paraphernalia of a publishing agreement to a simple exchange of letters—an extremely unsatisfactory 'old' fashion—we believe in a moderate conservatism in these matters, with the Authors' Society in the background, and without, as we trust, too keen a competition for success.

FOUR KINDS OF AGREEMENT

Whether effected directly or by means of an agent, the agreement between author and publisher may take one of four forms. It may be (1) a royalty agreement, in which the publisher takes all the costs and risk of production, and pays the author a certain percentage on every copy of the book sold; (2) a profit-sharing agreement, in which the author and publisher divide the net profits of the book; (3) a sale outright of the copyright by the author to the publisher; or (4) a commission agreement, which is more or less exactly the reverse of a royalty agreement—the author, that is to say, pays all the costs of production, and pays the publisher a commission in the form of a percentage on the sales effected.

COMMISSIONING THE PUBLISHER

This last form of agreement is perhaps the simplest, though for more than one reason it is the most unpopular with publishers. We shall not be stating these reasons unfairly if we say that some of them are disinterested and others, perhaps, a little interested. The commission book, if it is successful, certainly does not pay the publisher as well as a royalty book. But apart from this, the publisher naturally feels considerably less interest in undertaking it, inasmuch as the whole initiative is taken out of his hands, and he has to receive the author's sanction for every pennyworth of expenditure upon the book, and further, to justify such expenditure to the author, who may be difficult to convince or even hard of understanding, with the consequence that commission books, especially when only a small sale is expected, are often regarded by publishers as involving more trouble than they are worth, and are, indeed, usually declined, except in rare cases, by the best firms.

In entering on a memorandum of agreement for the publication of a book on commission, to take this fourth and simplest form first, such memorandum should be sent by the publisher accompanied, in every instance, by an estimate for producing the requisite number of copies of the book under discussion, to form one volume or more of approximately so many sheets of sixteen pages in such and such a size of paper. This estimate should state the rate and amount of the following items :

1. Composition per sheet.
2. Paper per ream.
3. Machining per ream.
4. Moulding or stereotyping, per sheet, if required.
5. Binding, per copy or per 100 copies.

Allowances should also be made for :

6. Illustrations, if required.
7. The brass blocks or letterings required by the binder.
8. The reader's time spent on proofs and revises.
9. Corrections, per hour.
10. Insurance, per £100.
11. Advertisements, which should be charged to the author at scale prices as ordered by him for insertion in papers of his selection.

Based on this estimate, the memorandum will witness that 'in consideration of the payment by the author to the publisher of the amount of the estimate hereinafter appearing, the receipt of which sum is hereby acknowledged, the publishers hereby agree to print, publish, advertise, and sell a first edition of a number to be agreed upon of the work written by the author, and entitled . . . and to pay to the author the sale profits thereof as hereinafter provided and calculated, and according to the terms hereinafter contained.'

The first clause of the agreement will then provide that the publishers shall produce the work in one volume or more, and shall warehouse the bound and quire stock, and shall deliver the usual press copies, and shall account to the author for every copy produced, annually or semi-annually, as may be agreed.

The second clause will deal with the method of calculating the sale proceeds. Copies sold in the United Kingdom at the regular trade prices are most commonly accounted for to the author at two-thirds of the full published price, thirteen copies being reckoned as twelve, less a discount of 10 per cent. This calculation is best reached by taking the average prices charged by the publishers to wholesale booksellers and exporters. We may remark here, in reference to this form of agreement, as well as to the three others, that the words 'thirteen copies being reckoned as twelve' frequently prove a stumbling-block to authors and to the partisans of authors' rights. It is equivalent, of course, to a loss to the author of about eight and a quarter copies of his book in every hundred copies sold, and in making a commission-agreement especially, the author may feel disposed to resent this apparent extortion on the part of the publishers. On the other hand, the publisher says that, in a very large number of cases, he has to supply the trade—i.e., booksellers and exporters—on these terms. It would be especially unfair to him in a commission-agreement that he should account to the author for copies as sold which he has actually supplied as odd or thirteenth copies; in a royalty-agreement, where large sales are anticipated, he might consent to waive the point in the author's favour.

A second section of Clause I will provide that stereotype plates and copies sold for the American, Indian, and Colonial markets at reduced prices will be calculated at the amounts actually received for them, and the same method of calculation will apply to copies sold in the United Kingdom or elsewhere by auction or privately to a dealer at reduced prices, or by way of remainder. On the other hand, something depends on the class of book to be sold; single copies, or less than half a dozen, may be most in demand, and probably no publisher would object to modify the clause if the circumstances of the case seemed to require it.

The further clauses necessary for such an agreement commonly run as follows. Our comments, where necessary, are made in smaller type :

'3. That the Publishers shall not make any charges for their expenses of bookings packings telegrams and postages or any other ordinary publishing expenses in connection with the sale of the said book and that only the actual postages on Provincial and Foreign Press Copies (where paid) shall be charged.

'4. That the Copyright and Plant of the book shall be the property of the Author.

'5. That the Author shall not be deprived of his share of the sale-proceeds of any copies sold the purchase money whereof shall not be paid to the Publishers.

'6. That the manner of Production Publication Sale and Advertisement of the said work shall in the absence of express agreement to the contrary lie wholly within the discretion of the Publishers.

This description covers the choice of type, selection of binding, arrangements with the trade, and suggestions as to methods of pushing the sale. The author should make up his mind very carefully beforehand how far he wishes to have a voice in these matters.

'7. That the Author shall give the Publishers six calendar months' notice in writing before he remove the publication of the book from them.

'8. That the Publishers shall be entitled to a commission of ten per centum on all sale proceeds and to a commission of five per centum on all advertisements of the book put out by them but that such advertisements shall invariably be charged at the scale prices of the respective papers and journals.

'9. That the Publishers shall annually make up as at the thirtieth of June the accounts of each year and shall render the same to the Author within three months therefrom and shall at the same time pay over any balance which may be found due to the Author.

It is better that these accounts should be rendered semi-annually, and, nowadays, the great majority of publishers agree to do so, but we state the clause in the form in which it is commonly printed

'10. That the Publishers' Day-books and Ledgers shall be open to the inspection of the Author either personally or by agent at any reasonable time after notice given in writing.

'11. That the Author shall be responsible for any action of Libel or of Infringement of Copyright arising out of the publication of the said work and shall indemnify and reimburse the Publishers for any damages cost or charges which they may reasonably incur or be called upon to pay in respect thereof.

'12. That the Author shall be entitled on publication of the book to twelve copies without any charge on the part of the Publishers and to any further copies required at two-thirds the published price (thirteen copies being reckoned as twelve) subject to a further discount of ten per centum (if cash accompany the order) such further copies to appear as sales in the Publishers' accounts.'

The author is obviously entitled to buy his books at the lowest trade terms.

SALE OF COPYRIGHT

Next in order we may take the sale-of-copyright agreement, in which the author is paid for his work on the book by a lump sum for the copyright. Such an agreement conveys the copyright of the book, and vests it in the publisher on publication. There is usually a time-clause as to the date at which the complete manuscript is to be delivered to the publisher, and there should always be a clause fixing (under penalty) the date of publication. Further, there is a clause prohibiting the author from writing or publishing any similar book on the same subject. This clause must be taken for what it is worth. It will readily be seen that it is difficult to state precisely what degree of similarity constitutes an infringement by one book of the copyright of another. If author and publisher signing this clause have reason to mistrust each other, the points of likeness covered by the prohibition should be expressly specified, a condition which can readily be fulfilled in some instances, such as those of books of a highly technical nature, where, indeed, the clause acquires real significance.

The most important clause in such an agreement from the author's point of view, and to a less extent from the publisher's, is the sum to be paid in purchase of the book and rights therein. It is quite impossible for us to give information of any value whatsoever as a guide to authors in this matter. The opinion may be hazarded, however, that the multiplication of would-be authors during the last fifteen or twenty years has created a kind of 'slump' in certain markets. But in no case is it possible to give anything like even an approximate scale of prices for literary wares, though an offer below the rate of £1 per 1,000 words should be regarded in the light of a 'sporting bid.' In agreements of this kind the author, if inexperienced, would probably do well to invoke the opinion of a competent literary agent before consenting to part with his copyright for a definite sum of money.

DIVISION OF PROFITS

Thirdly, we come to the agreement on a profit-sharing basis. In this case the publisher takes all the risks and cost of publication, either for a single edition of a stated number of copies or for a stated number of editions and for a stated time. If these statements are specified in the agreement, it may be renewed at option at the time of its natural termination. The essential clause of such an agreement is, of course, that which deals with the division of the net profits. The amount of these is reached after deducting all the costs of production and publication, including trade discounts, advertisements, and an allowance for establishment expenses—i.e., clerks' time and other office conveniences. It is obvious that an author is very much at the mercy of his publisher in entering upon such an agreement, for the establishment expenses, proportionate costs of travelling, rent, warehousing, and so forth, as well as the calculation of trade discounts, are extremely difficult in many instances and impossible in others to check. Yet, from the publisher's point of view, these calculations form a considerable item. A simpler way of dealing with them would be for the publisher to state from his own knowledge the proportion borne by establishment charges in his gross profits, and to apply this scale to the particular book; but this method presses hardly on the publisher, as the costs of travelling, etc., in the case of a new book are higher than the average based on the whole of his catalogue. Authors should only enter upon a profit-sharing agreement with the utmost caution and with a most reputable firm, though it forms a convenient arrangement in the case of a book by more than one author. If the publisher retains, say, one-third or one-half of the net profits, the division of the remaining two-thirds or one-half between the several authors is a matter of simple arithmetic.

ROYALTY AGREEMENT

Fourthly, we come to the royalty agreement, which is the commonest and in most instances the fairest method of publication. The essence of a royalty agreement is that the author shall receive a certain sum in respect of every copy of the book sold, and, plainly, the most important part of such an agreement is to determine the amount of the royalty to be paid. Some general considerations suggest themselves at this point. First: It should be fairly obvious that the author may expect to receive a larger royalty as the price of the book increases. Taking the commonest range of prices from 6d. to 10s. 6d., it is clear that a 10 per cent. royalty on a sixpenny book is an almost impossible condition, whereas it would be an extremely small charge on a book published at 10s. 6d. Three-fifths of a penny deducted from a book which may be bought by the public at 4½d., and which is sold by the publisher at any price between 3d. and 4d., is a far heavier deduction than 1s. 0¾d. deducted from a book which may be bought by the public at 7s. 10½d., and for which the publisher receives something over 6s. In the first instance the publisher would have about 2½d. out of which to pay for the production of the book and his own profits; in the latter case he would have about 5s. Secondly: Royalties are paid to the author on the full published price of the book. A 10 per cent. royalty on a 2s. 6d. book is 3d. But the publisher is paid only a trade-price. On a 2s. 6d. net book he will receive, at the best, 2s. 1d., less certain discounts, and for a 2s. 6d. non-net or 'ordinary' book he will receive on an average about 1s. 6d. Accordingly, in paying 3d. to the author, and calling it a 10 per cent. royalty, the publisher is really paying about one-eighth of what he receives on the net price, and about one-sixth of what he receives on the ordinary price, or a $12\frac{1}{2}$ and $16\frac{2}{3}$ per cent. royalty respectively. In justice to publishers, it may be urged that the author who is inclined to cavil at the small figure 10 in a royalty proposal is too frequently ignorant or oblivious of the real facts of the case. Thirdly : In a royalty agreement the publisher bears, as has been said, all the costs of production. He is accordingly considerably out of pocket by producing the book, and even in favourable circumstances he does not recoup his outlay till a thousand copies of the book have been sold. Hence it follows that perhaps the fairest form of royalty agreement is one which provides for a graduated royalty. If the author receives 10 per cent. on the published price of the first thousand copies, he may fairly ask for $12\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on the published price of the 1,001st to the 2,000th copy, by which time the publisher should also be making his first profits, if the selling price of the book has been fairly adjusted to its production expenses. And if the published price can bear so heavy a deduction, the royalty may then rise by $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per thousand copies to 20 per cent., which is equivalent, as has been shown above, to a royalty of about 33 per cent., or a little more, on the actual amount received by the publisher for each copy.

ADVANCE ON ROYALTIES

The last consideration to which we would direct the particular attention of authors and publishers, in dealing with a royalty-agreement, is that of a stipulated sum to be handed over in advance of royalties. Such a clause providing that a sum, usually from £20 upwards, shall be paid to the author by the publisher, either on delivery of manuscript, or on the return of the last proof for press, or on publication, has become quite a common demand in recent times at the instance of literary agents or of the authors whose interests they represent. At bottom it amounts to nothing more than the author's borrowing money without interest on a security in which the money-lender has already invested capital, and, looked at from this point of view, there is certainly some force, at least, in the objections made by many reputable publishers to such a transaction. The author's argument is that he is always considerably out of time by his labour on his book, and that he is sometimes even out of pocket for the expenses of typewriting and so forth, and that he may accordingly not unreasonably ask that a part of his future profits shall be paid to him in advance. This plea is tenable enough in the case of authors of established reputation, and of books the profits of which are certain to accrue, and in such cases a moderate request of the kind would probably meet with no serious opposition from the publisher. But in the case of the large majority of books, the total profits on which are not likely to exceed a sum of between £50 and £100, and in the case of authors whose names do not carry much weight with the reading public, and the publication of whose work, therefore, is speculative on the publisher's part, such a demand for a loan without interest can only be supported by the fact that publishers can be found to comply with it. If the author has put his time into the book, the publisher is prepared to put his money and the organized machinery of his business, on which he depends for a livelihood. Both legitimately expect to reap the reward of their investment in the profits that accrue in the future.

The above facts and figures should go far to place the normal facts—we are not dealing with exceptional circumstances—before the prospective author. He will be dealing with a business man, and must be prepared to meet a business point of view. In every particular, a mean must be found between the author's faith in his own book and the publisher's willingness to back it. Thus, the price of a book will be partly determined by the bargain struck between the author and the publisher, which it is the agent's business to make as favourable to the author as he can. If the author is content to back his own faith in his own book, in the sense of accepting a fair royalty on a low price, without power of anticipation, a publisher who likewise believes in the book—and no other is likely to publish it—will similarly be willing to fix the price within the reach of moderate purses, and thus to recoup himself slowly for his outlay on plant, advertisement, travelling, establishment, and on stock. On the other hand, if, as mostly happens, the author's estimate of sales has to be divided by a half, and if, further, he insists on a large payment in advance of royalties, the publisher must either decline the book or must publish it at a price which will bring him back his money within a reasonable period—i.e., at a high price, after which—as often happens—a cheap 'popular' edition becomes a wise speculation. This is the normal course of the successful launching of new authors.

We now come to the memorandum itself:

III. MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT

AFTER what has been said above, the common form of memorandum does not require any lengthy consideration. The order and wording of the clauses will differ from house to house, but must all alike carry out the principles agreed above.

The preamble states that 'This Agreement made' on such-and-such a date 'between' so-and-so 'Publishers [and Exporters] of _____ for themselves their successors and assignees* hereinafter called the Publishers of the one part and 'so-and-so' of _____ for him (her) self his (her) heirs executors administrators and assignees hereinafter styled the Author of the other part Witnesseth.'

The preamble gives us the essential parties—viz., publisher and author—without further circumlocution. These parties agree as to a sale or lease of the author's property to the publisher on certain terms and conditions. The essence of the agreement follows the technical word witnesseth, and a royalty agreement proceeds thus or to this effect: 'That in consideration that the copyright and plant including therein' such foreign and Colonial rights of translation and reproduction as the author may arrange to part with 'of the work to be written by the Author and entitled provisionally' so-and-so 'shall forthwith belong to and become the property of the Publishers, but subject always to a lien thereon for any sums due to the Author by the Publishers for Royalties, the Publishers hereby agree' [this verb is governed in legal grammar by the first conjunction that after witnesseth] 'to print publish advertise and sell a first edition of' so many 'copies of the said work and as many subsequent editions thereof as they may think desirable and to pay to the Author a Royalty on the sales as hereinafter provided.'

A few commas would improve the appearance of this statement, but punctuation is taboo, as a rule, in such documents. Otherwise, the points worthy of notice are:

1. The stamp duty is reduced to 6d. by describing the book as 'to be written,' and its title as 'provisional.'
2. The transfer of copyright. This clause appears in practically all agreements of this nature, and our advice to authors is never to part with their copyright, but to alter this to 'exclusive licence to print and publish in book form

* The opinion has been expressed that the contract should be personal to the publisher, and not also with his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns. It will be sufficient to say that no publisher of repute (except under very special circumstances) would, if only in justice to his own creditors, make it a practice to enter into purely personal contracts, and thus destroy the whole conception of a trading concern, converting a genuine commercial enterprise into mere speculations on his own longevity. Even were he to do so, the value of the article to be transferred by the author would be correspondingly reduced. The word "assigns," however, might advantageously be excluded, as an author may reasonably insist on being made a party to an assignment, seeing that his pecuniary interests are involved and that the assignee may be a less solvent person than the assignor, or even insolvent.

in the English language,' an alteration to which no firm of repute should object. The object, of course, is to protect the publisher against the negligent author who brings out another or very similar edition with a rival firm, and so kills the market for the original edition.

3. 'Their successors and assignees.' We leave these words as they stand in ordinary agreements, but it is extremely desirable (see after Clause 10, below) to provide for the determination of the agreement in the event of certain contingencies, such as a sale to creditors or to a house of inferior standing of the publisher's assets. Much depends upon the status of the firm with which the author is negotiating, and it is in matters of this kind that an agent's advice would be useful, if he would consent to be consulted like a solicitor, and to receive a fee for his services.

4. Foreign and colonial rights vary in value with the nature of the book, and in some cases are nil. When considerable sales out of England are expected, the arrangements should be carefully discussed beforehand, and a publisher selected who has facilities for distribution in other countries. The import duty in the U.S.A. makes a profitable sale increasingly difficult, but, as it is cheaper to print a large edition than a small, a part of the publisher's profit lies in what he saves in his printer's bill. Translation rights, as a rule, fetch only small sums, as they handicap the book with a preliminary fee to the translator before the ordinary production expenses begin. Colonial editions, as such, are very fast falling into disuse; they should carry a royalty proportionate to the selling price of the book in that form.

5. If the author wishes to make stipulations as to advertisements, he must do so at this stage. Some firms advertise much more extensively than others, who rely, perhaps, on better 'travelling' arrangements.

The memorandum now continues :

' And it is hereby further agreed

' 1. That the Publishers shall :—

- ' (a) Produce the book in volume .
- ' (b) Warehouse the bound and quire stock.
- ' (c) Deliver the usual Press copies to the London and Provincial Journals.

See note 3 above (under "Commissioning the Publisher," page 387).

- ' (d) Account annually to the Author for every copy produced.'

Semi-annual renditions are generally granted, if desired, and are preferable to annual accounts (see under "Commissioning the

‘2. That the Author’s Royalty shall be calculated in manner following :—

- ‘(a) As to copies sold in the United Kingdom at the regular trade price, per centum on the full published price thereof, thirteen copies being reckoned as twelve.

Comment on this clause is governed by the remarks in the foregoing section on ‘Author, Publisher, and Agent.’ Should a graduated royalty be agreed, as recommended, the clause would run : so much ‘per cent. on the full published price of the first thousand’ (or so many) ‘copies thereof,’ so much ‘per cent. on that of the next’ so many ‘copies thereof,’ so much ‘per cent. on that of the next’ so many ‘copies thereof,’ and so on, ‘13 copies being reckoned as 12.’

- ‘(b) As to stereotype plates and copies sold for the American, Indian, and Colonial markets at reduced prices, per centum on the amount actually received in respect thereof.

Subject to discussion. Ten per cent. on the actual receipts is often quite fair to the author, as books are sold to the American market at not much above cost price of production. The conditions ruling the transaction in question should be examined on their merits.

- ‘(c) As to copies sold in the United Kingdom by auction, or privately to a dealer at reduced prices, or by way of remainder, per centum on the amount actually received in respect thereof, but the Author shall always have the option of purchasing such remainders from the Publisher at their actual cost of production.’

This clause is not as tautological as it sounds. The remaining copies of an old edition may be sold at reduced prices, though the book itself is not ‘remaindered,’ as special trade reasons may intervene. Five or ten per cent. is quite a fair proportion to the author, as a rule. Note that the remainder-clause is essential in an author’s interest. Failing the provision for the author’s share in copies sold ‘by way of remainder,’ it has recently been held in law that the publisher is not liable to pay any royalty on such sales (Farmer v. Lane : Mr. Heinemann’s evidence for the defendants). The injustice of this decision in equity is clear, and the author should see that he is protected. The clause should further invariably provide for the first offer of the ‘remainder’ to be made to the author.

The remaining clauses of the memorandum are as follows, and do not call for special comment beyond what has been given in advance :

- ‘3. That bad debts shall be the charge of the Publishers, the Author not being deprived of any Royalty on copies sol by reason of the sale-proceeds not having been paid to the Publishers.

'4. That the manner of Production, Publication, Sale, and extent of Advertisement of the said work shall in the absence of express agreement to the contrary lie wholly within the discretion of the Publishers.

'5. That the Author shall be liable for the expenses of Author's proof corrections (exclusive of the corrections of Printers' errors) beyond the amount of six shillings per sheet of sixteen pages and that should such charges exceed this amount the Author shall be debited with the excess.

'6. That the Publishers shall annually make up as at the thirtieth of June [or twice a year, as at the thirtieth of June and the thirty-first of December] the accounts of each year and shall on demand render the same to the Author two months thereafter and shall at the same time pay over any balance which may be found due to the Author.

'7. That the Publishers' books shall be open to the inspection of the Author either personally or by agent at any reasonable time after notice given in writing.

'8. That the Author shall be responsible for any action of Libel or Infringement of Copyright arising out of the publication of the said work and shall indemnify and reimburse the Publishers for any damages costs or charges which they may reasonably incur or be called upon to pay in respect thereof.

'9. That the Author shall be entitled to six [or twelve] gratis copies of the said work on publication, and that any further copies required shall be supplied at two-thirds of the published price (thirteen copies being reckoned as twelve).

'10. That, should the Publishers allow the book to be and remain out of print for a period of [six] months or more, the copyright shall ipso facto revert to and become vested in the Author.'

The payment on account and agency clauses, if included, would follow here, and likewise any special clauses agreed between the parties, such as, for example, a proviso for the termination of the Agreement in the event of the Publisher's bankruptcy.

LIBRARIES

NOTE.—A selection of libraries only, giving the special collections to be found in them and particulars as to admission. As public (i.e., municipal) libraries are to be found in all the London Boroughs, and in practically all towns of any size in the Provinces, it has not been thought necessary to give these, except where they contain special collections of books on technical or other subjects likely to be used for purposes of research by authors.

ABERYSTWYTH.

National Library of Wales.—The Library, founded by Royal Charter dated 1907, began its career in a temporary building January 1, 1909. The authority is vested in a Court of Governors elected mainly by public authorities in Wales, and a Council. The buildings are on a magnificent site of 6½ acres, presented by Lord Rendel. The first portion has been erected at a cost of £125,000. The estimated cost of the complete buildings is about £300,000. The library is open to the public daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. (Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.), excepting Sundays, Good Friday, Christmas Day, and such other days as may from time to time be authorized. The Library is maintained by a Government grant of £4,000 per an, reduced to £3,200 during the war.

THE COLLECTIONS.—The Library is both general and special. Every effort is being made to make the collection relating to Wales and the Celtic peoples and languages as complete as possible. To this end, every work, pamphlet, or printed document published in or concerning Wales and the other Celtic areas is acquired as published, and in the case of older works as opportunity offers. The feature of the library is the collection of Welsh MSS., which is the finest in the world, and is mainly due to the munificence of Sir John Williams. It includes a number of unique works of great importance. By the Copyright Act of 1911, the Library was added to the libraries entitled to claim a copy of all books published in Great Britain (see under "Copyright and the Libraries"). The number of printed books in the library is over 200,000; of MSS., about 5,000. There is also a large collection of Maps and Topographical prints and drawings.

ADMISSION.—Tickets are granted to persons over twenty years of age on the recommendation of a householder who knows applicant personally. Applications should reach the librarian a day or two before the admission is required. Tickets are available for one year, but may be renewed by the Librarian.

LOANS.—The Library is empowered to make duplicate collections for loan purposes. The privilege of borrowing can only be extended to thoroughly responsible persons, who must supply full name and address, occupation, and the purpose for which the books are required. Under no circumstances will a book be lent unless the library possesses a duplicate. The cost of carriage must be paid by the borrower. Manuscripts are not lent. A system of loans of boxes of books for the use of study-classes in districts remote from libraries was instituted in 1913 with great success.

The library authorities are prepared to undertake responsibility for MSS., etc., temporarily deposited for the use of students.

ABERYSTWYTH (continued)—

CATALOGUES.—A complete card catalogue of the library is in progress. The cards are printed, and a sufficient number of copies are made for the Celtic literature section to enable the authorities to offer sets for sale. For the present this mainly applies to books published in and after 1909. An annual register of publications of interest to Wales and the Celtic peoples is issued under the title of Bibliotheca Celtica as soon as the data for each year is complete. This volume is sold at 2s. 6d. net, and should be subscribed for in advance. The volume for 1909 is out of print.

LONDON.

British Museum Reading Room, Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, W.C. (1759). The number of books in the Brit. Mus. library cannot be stated exactly, probably three and a half to four millions.

ADMISSION.—This is granted (to applicants over twenty-one years of age) on receipt of a recommendation by a householder who is personally acquainted with the applicant. The particular purpose for which admission is sought must also be indicated in the letter of application. This must be sent by post two days at least before admission is required. The ticket is usually for three months. When asking for renewal, it is necessary to return the old ticket. Tickets must be returned when no longer required. Applicants under twenty-one years of age require the Trustees' special permission.

All tickets are strictly non-transferable, and must be shown, if required, before entering the room. For the Students' Room of the Department of MSS., the Print Room, etc., a separate ticket is required, subject to the same conditions as to its granting, etc., as for the Reading Room.

No sticks or umbrellas are permitted in the rooms; overcoats should also be left with the cloak-room officials.

ROOMS.—Besides the Reading Room and the Newspaper Room (which, in addition to newspapers, contains the London Gazette, Journals of the House of Commons, and other Parliamentary papers), other Students' Rooms are the MSS. Students' Room, the Oriental Students' Room, and the Print Room.

APPLICATION FOR BOOKS IN READING ROOM—On the tops of the low shelves occupied by the volumes of the various catalogues will be seen boxes of printed slips. These are filled in, as indicated, from the Catalogues, the chief items to note being the correct press-mark of the book and the number of the reader's seat. The other particulars—i.e., date of publication, title and author of the book—are also, however, of importance, and not to be omitted by those desiring to be served without delay. The slips are placed in boxes at the centre counter, the reader returning to his desk to await the books, a matter usually of between ten and thirty minutes, according to the pressure of work and the portion of the library in which the books are stored. Books are at present (1916) supplied from the General Library up to 4 p.m. When he has finished with his books, the reader restores them to the centre desk, receiving in exchange the slips, which, unless he intends using the same book or books again within the next few days, are best destroyed. Readers are held responsible for books until the slips have been re-delivered to them.

KEPT BOOKS.—Books are kept, by request, subject to no other reader putting in an application for them during the absence of the reader for whom they are put aside. In each book a slip of paper must be placed, on which (so as to be legible without opening the book) are written the date and reader's name. There are special baskets at Bar A and Bar T for slips for "kept" books, and the latter are usually brought round within a few minutes. "Kept" books, if not called for within two days, are returned to the shelves.

THE BAR.—It is sometimes impossible for a reader to spend any time at the Reading Room until after the latest hour for putting in application slips in the ordinary way.

In such cases it is permitted to send the slips, filled in beforehand, by post, to be delivered at the Museum, some hours before the books are actually wanted. Instead of filling in any seat-number the applicant marks the slips "Bar A" or "Bar T," and the books are kept for him in the cages on either side of the central desk until called for later in the day.

REFERENCE SHELVES.—In addition to the bulk of the collection, which is only available as indicated in the foregoing remarks, there are on the shelves on the ground floor of the Reading Room itself some 20,000 reference volumes, ranging through history, geography and travel, and every science, down to such works of reference as encyclopædias, lexicons, directories, and the like. These the reader is permitted to take down for himself, but must replace on the proper shelf when he has finished using them. With regard to the encyclopædias, dictionaries, etc., these must be returned to the shelves as soon as done with, and in some cases must be consulted at the shelf. In Continental libraries readers are not permitted to carry off to their own desks reference works of this description.

CATALOGUES.—The AUTHOR Catalogue, stretching in double row around the central desk, is now, in its printed form, condensed to about 1,000 volumes. In the way of CLASS Catalogues, which for the most part exist in the unrealized dreams of successive generations of librarians, we have Fortescue's exceedingly useful SUBJECT INDEX, and Poole's likewise valuable INDEX TO PERIODICALS. A new edition of Fortescue's SUBJECT INDEX, 1881-1900, has now been printed, as also additional volumes for the years 1901-1905, 1906-1910; and there is a current subject index 1911 and onwards. These aids to reference are, with their respective supplements, to be found next the central desk. There are, in addition to these, special catalogues of manuscripts, music, and maps, and useful bibliographies on every subject are to be found in the cases at the end of the readers' desks.

TRACING.—Application must be made to the Superintendent for permission.

The READING ROOM is at present (1916) open on week-days (except the first four week-days of March and September, Good Friday, Christmas Day, and days appointed by authority), from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., throughout the year. Books must be given up at 4.45 p.m.

The NEWSPAPER ROOM, which is under the same regulations as the Reading Room, is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Room is closed on Sundays, Good Friday, Christmas Day, and the first four week-days of March and September.

The STUDENTS' ROOM, DEPARTMENT OF MSS., is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., it being required that all MSS. be given up at 4.45 p.m. This Room (as well as the Oriental Students' Room) is closed at certain times, as in the case of the Reading and Newspaper Rooms.

The PRINT ROOM and the ORIENTAL STUDENTS' ROOM are at present closed.

I. CONTRIBUTORS' GUIDE TO BRITISH AND IRISH PERIODICAL PUBLICATIONS

NOTE.—From considerations of space it is necessary to condense as far as practicable the information contained in the "Literary Year Book," and for this reason periodicals which give no informative matter beyond an address (which can be found in any press guide), are omitted. As this list is intended to supplement, and not necessarily take the place of a press guide, no useful purpose is served by merely duplicating information contained in the latter, which represents so much "dead stock" as far as contributors are concerned.

NOTE —D=Daily, W=Weekly, M=Monthly, Q=Quarterly. Editors names are not as a rule given, as they are not necessary for the transaction of business, and in these days of rapid changes are better omitted. An asterisk (*) implies illustration; but it may be safely assumed that almost every leading daily and evening newspaper now accepts sketches and photographic illustrations in elucidation of its letterpress.

NOTE.—The particulars added for the guidance of would-be contributors have been supplied in almost all cases by the editors of the periodicals themselves, and the Proprietor of the "Literary Year Book" cannot be held responsible for any loss or disappointment which may be incurred by contributors.

THE following instructions are given for convenience of reference in the hope that they will be of service to writers, and indirectly to those editors who are overwhelmed with matter which is sent without reference to the simple and necessary rules that prevail in all well-conducted offices. A vast amount of trouble is caused to those who deal with MSS. by the want of consideration that characterizes the methods of a large proportion of occasional correspondents.

1. All MSS. should be typewritten. Editors as a rule will consent to read written "copy," but typewritten matter has a greater chance of being read quickly.

2. MSS. must be written on one side of the paper only. This rule is made for the convenience of printers. The "copy" which is given out to compositors is nearly always cut into small sections; consequently a MS. which is written on both sides of the paper cannot be readily dealt with.

3. It is most important to use discretion and judgment in the matter of submitting MSS. These should not be sent round indiscriminately: the character and tone of each publication should be studied, and an agent's advice consulted if necessary. The classified index at the end of this section (pages 475 to 486) will be found of great assistance in selecting a suitable publication.

4. Writers should be very careful to ascertain the correct style and address of the paper to which they are submitting their efforts. Magazine addresses frequently change. It is, in fact, essential for those who wish to succeed to be accurate in every particular, even in those matters which involve merely technical detail.

5. Letters to editors are not as a rule necessary. Each MS. should have clearly placed upon the first page the author's name and address. A fully stamped and addressed envelope for return of the MS. should always be enclosed.

6. Proposals to submit MSS. to editors should only be sent in exceptional cases. No interviews must be expected by contributors, except those which are invited by the editor.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.—Owing to the war, certain of the following periodicals may be temporarily suspended at any time. This should be ascertained before submitting MSS.

Aberdeen Daily Journal (1876), D., 1d. 18-22 Broad Street, Aberdeen, 5 New Bridge Street, E.C.

II. AMERICAN PERIODICAL PUBLICATIONS AND CONTRIBUTORS' GUIDE

NOTE.—The following is a list of American publications, many of which are open to receive contributions from British writers.

Many of the remarks given at the head of the "British Periodicals' List" are applicable here, with the addition of the following :

1. Some American magazines are apt to make changes in editorial policy—i.e., their requirements may change with change of editor, but, usually, known contributors are notified of this.

2. A better idea of their requirements may often be obtained by perusal of the current numbers of the magazines themselves, rather than by what can be got from a necessarily short description of contents.

3. When selling a MS. in the United States or Canada, care should be exercised concerning copyrights, the majority of U.S.A. periodicals buying outright. Many of the better class of U.S.A. monthlies also obtain, and rigorously adhere to, their rights of copyright in the British Dominions, while the Canadian copyright is usually included in the sale either to the average British or American periodical, unless otherwise stipulated.

4. MSS. and informative letter should not be sent separately, a course against which the usual U.S.A. editorial department vigorously protests, as it entails separate entries in the receiving book and disarrangement in departmental routine. An envelope, large enough to take the MS. folded twice, should be enclosed for return if not accepted. Preferably it should be stamped, though some editorial departments do not object to the inclusion of a postal coupon instead. This coupon, to the value of 5 cents, can be obtained at any post-office within the British Isles, Canada, British Columbia, New Zealand, and the majority of British Possessions, excepting the Commonwealth of Australia, where such coupons are neither valid nor accepted.

5. MSS. can be sent by "Commercial Papers' " Rate ($2\frac{1}{2}$ d. the first 10 ounces and $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per 2 ounces thereafter), which applies both to and from the U.S.A. and all other countries in the Postal Union, but such packets must be left with the ends open for inspection if necessary. Now that the letter post to the U.S.A. is reduced to 1d. the ounce, contributors may find it more convenient to send their MSS. thus, though the exigencies of the Censor should be kept in mind.

NOTE.—As the "Literary Year-Book" is intended primarily for British writers, the following list of American periodicals has not been extended (no useful purpose being served by so doing), as the great majority desire American characteristics in their make-up

Irregular contributors to American publications should, during the period of European hostilities, keep in mind that the majority of publications herein listed seek to maintain a neutral attitude, except one or two of the leading international magazines.

An asterisk (*) before a title implies illustration.

Adventure, M., 15 cents (7½d.). Spring and Macdougall Streets, New York. Serials and complete novels, 35,000 to 150,000 words: Short fiction from 2,000 to 8,000 words. "Adventures anywhere and everywhere." High literary standard. Rates as arranged, and paid on acceptance.

Ainslie's Magazine, M., 15 cents* (7½d.). 79 Seventh Avenue, N.Y.

A popular high-class monthly that accepts stories of all lengths, based on society themes with a strong leaning towards American topics; also dealing with love and adventure involving dramatic situations, treated with literary skill. Fantastic fiction is occasionally used if of high literary merits, but tragedy not desired. The predominant note in all work, whether fiction or articles, which should be concerned about prominent people, must be the feminine interest. Remuneration is high, at the editor's discretion, and usually paid on acceptance. One complete novel of from 65,000 to 70,000 words is used in each issue.

II Around Magazine, M., 10 cents (5d.). 79 Seventh Avenue, New York.

American Suburbs, M., 15 cents (7½d.). THE SUBURBAN PUBLISHING COMPANY, Philadelphia.

Articles (1,800 to 5,000 words) of interest to those having country houses and gardens. Payment as agreed.

Argonaut, The, W., 10 cents (5d.). San Francisco, Cal.

A high-class literary and society journal. Stories, from 2,000 to 3,500 words, dealing with Pacific Coast are most acceptable. Payment, five dollars (£1) per 1,000 words, or as arranged.

Argosy, The, M., 10 cents (5d.). 8 West 40th Street, New York City.

Accepts all varieties of fiction, from storyettes of 1,000 words to serials of 20,000 to 50,000 words, and novels 65,000 to 100,000 words. No articles, verse, or anecdotes. Payment ($\frac{1}{2}$ cent to 10 cents per word) on acceptance.

Associated Sunday Magazines, 52 East Nineteenth Street, New York City.

A Sunday supplement used by leading journals from East to West. Articles, fiction, occasional verse, and humour, are paid for liberally and promptly. High literary quality essential, and must appeal to American readers. Photographs and brief sketches of interesting or unique things, events, and people. Letter advisable from British contributors.

Atlantic Monthly, M., 35 cents (1s. 5½d.). 4 Park Street, Boston, U.S.A.

Editor, Mr. ELLERY SEDGWICK. London Address: c.o. Messrs. CONSTABLE AND CO., 10 Orange Street, Leicester Square, W.C.

Accepts fiction and articles, not necessarily American, running from 2,500 to 12,000 words or so, but seldom makes use of a serial. Each month it prints and pays for from twenty to twenty-five contributions, including articles on science, art, literature, and politics. Its material must show the hallmark of literature. Remuneration is high, and paid on acceptance.

Ave Maria, M., 5 cents (2½d.). Notre Dame, Indiana, U.S.A.

A Roman Catholic publication buying short stories and verses in accordance with its religious views. Payment from 16s. per 1,000 words upwards.

Benziger's Monthly, M., 10 cents (5d.). New York City.

Makes use of fiction, verse, and articles, illustrated matter, etc., of a high-grade quality, intended for Roman Catholic readers. Fiction should run from 2,500 to 5,000 words, and articles similar. Occasionally a serial, from 35,000 to 45,000 words, appears, more or less religious in purport. Remuneration as arranged by the editors.

Black Cat Monthly, 10 cents (5d.) Salem, Mass

"We want clean original stories, ranging from 1,500 to 5,000 words—the shorter the better. Stories so unusual and fascinating from beginning to end as to interest everyone. Stories free from padding, commonplace, and foreign phrases. We don't want verses, plays, translations, or dialect stories. Upon approval of an MS. we name our price, and pay promptly on author's acceptance. A condition of the purchase is that we acquire all rights thereto of whatsoever nature." Remuneration, £2 to £6 per 1,000 words, on acceptance. Stories of the war not in favour.

Blue Book, M., 10 cents (5d.). North American Building, Chicago.

A fiction monthly using short stories only of from 2,000 to 3,000 words. It prefers themes dealing with love and mystery, and adventure, honesty, pushfulness, fidelity, etc., with an American setting preferably, though others may not disqualify the story if it finds approval. Payment, five dollars and upwards per 1,000 words.

Bookman, M., 25 cents (1s. 0½d.). 372 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Accepts articles written from the authoritative point of view, and running 2,500 to 3,500 words, on the literary world in general. Occasionally it publishes a short story, 3,000 to 4,000 words in length, and uses a serial, high-grade in material and literary handling. Payment as arranged by the editor.

NOTE.—As the "Literary Year-Book" is intended primarily for British writers, the following list of American periodicals has not been extended (no useful purpose being served by so doing), as the great majority desire American characteristics in their make-up.

Irregular contributors to American publications should, during the period of European hostilities, keep in mind that the majority of publications herein listed seek to maintain a neutral attitude, except one or two of the leading international magazines.

An asterisk (*) before a title implies illustration.

Adventure, M., 15 cents (7½d.). Spring and Macdougall Streets, New York. Serials and complete novels, 35,000 to 150,000 words: Short fiction from 2,000 to 8,000 words. "Adventures anywhere and everywhere." High literary standard. Rates as arranged, and paid on acceptance.

III. CANADIAN PERIODICAL PUBLICATIONS

NOTE.—The increase in the number of periodicals published in the Dominion of Canada during the past few years has been such as to warrant the compilation of a list dealing specially with them. It might be noted with regard to these Canadian periodicals that their contents are made up chiefly of articles on Canadian subjects. This is owing to the fact that unless a periodical possesses some such distinction, it cannot successfully compete with the many excellent English and American periodicals of a general character which circulate so freely in the Dominion. The advice given to contributors to American magazines applies equally to Canadian magazines.

An asterisk (*) implies illustration.

Canada Monthly (1906), M., 15 cents (7½d). 382, Clarence Street, London, Ontario.

Publishes fiction and illustrated articles, which deal preferably with Canadian subjects. Circulates principally in Western Canada. Payment by arrangement. Fiction must be either Canadian or English in location and local colour.

CONTRIBUTORS' INDEX TO PERIODICALS

NOTE.—The Index is designed to show contributors the most suitable papers to which to submit articles, stories, or any other literary work. The periodicals indexed correspond with those contained in the lists preceding this, but newspapers are not included. They in general are open to accept articles only of certain kinds. Many specials, or "middles," as the day's articles are sometimes termed, are commissioned—i.e., given out to a specialist on the particular subject—although occasionally even so conservative a paper as The Times accepts outside specials. Reviews, too, both in general periodicals and literary papers, are invariably commissioned. The same remarks also apply to leaders.

The classification is primarily taken from the details given by the periodicals, but where these are insufficient the information has been obtained from other sources. It has been found impossible to give details of the length of articles, as very few publications have a hard-and-fast rule in this respect; the majority prefer something between 1,000 and 2,000 words, although the monthlies frequently publish articles as long as 6,000 words.

An asterisk * shows that the periodical is illustrated with drawings or photographs.

Periodicals marked with a dagger (†) will be found in the "American Periodicals" List; those marked (‡) in the "Indian Periodicals" List, and those marked (§) in the "Canadian Periodicals" List.

¹ The larger number of periodicals is illustrated at the present day, but most of these are commissioned—i. e., they are illustrations drawn to order for stories or matter already written. Some, however, take outside drawings and photography. Papers and magazines taking illustrations on special subjects will be found under those subjects. Periodicals taking humorous drawings will be found under 'Humour,' and a few magazines occasionally take cover illustrations. Most of the full-page illustrations in the weekly illustrated periodicals are drawn by the art staff.

Do not try to correct the faults of hurried making-ready by a weak impression, and by carrying an excess of ink to hide the weakness. Excess of ink fouls the rollers, clogs the type, and makes the printed work smear or set off. A good print cannot be had when the impression is so weak that the paper touches barely the ink on the types and is not pressed against the types. There must be force enough to transfer the ink not only on to the paper, but into the paper. A firm impression should be had, even if the paper be indented. The amount of impression required will largely depend on the making-ready. With careful making-ready, impression may be light; roughly and hurriedly done, it must be hard. Indentation is evidence of wear of type. The spring and resulting friction of an elastic impression surface is most felt where there is least resistance—at the upper and lower ends of lines of type, where they begin to round off. It follows that the saving of time that may be gained by hurried and rough making-ready must be offset by an increased wear of type. That impression is best for preventing wear of type which is confined to its surface and never laps over ~~over~~ its edges. But this perfect surface impression is possible only on a large forme with new type, sound, ~~and~~ packing, and ample time for making-ready. If types are worn, the indentation of the paper by impression cannot be entirely prevented. Good presswork does not depend entirely upon the press or machine, neither on the workman, nor on the materials. Nor will superiority in any ~~one~~ point compensate for deficiency in another: new type will suffer from a poor roller, and careful making-ready is thrown away if poor ink be used. It is necessary that all the materials shall be good, that they should be adapted to each other and fitly used. A good workman can do much with poor materials, but a neglect to comply with one condition often produces as bad a result as the neglect of all.

If the foregoing facts are carefully studied many difficulties will be overcome in obtaining really good work.

THE NOBEL FOUNDATION AND THE NOBEL PRIZES

(Reprinted from The Author with the kind permission of the Incorporated Society of Authors.)

ALFRED BERNHARD NOBEL, the inventor of dynamite, died in 1896, leaving the residue of his great fortune, estimated at about £2,000,000 sterling, for the foundation of five annual prizes, to be awarded for the most important discoveries in physics, chemistry, and physiology or medicine, for the most remarkable work of an idealist tendency, and for the greatest service rendered to the cause of peace during the year. The value of each prize is about £8,000.

An official French translation of the statutes and regulations relating to the Nobel Foundation has been issued. The original documents received the sanction of the King of Sweden on June 29, 1900.

It will be seen that the text of the will has received a liberal interpretation. In addition to the prizes, provision is made for the establishment of Nobel institutes where researches may be carried on, and of special funds from which grants may be given to promote the objects which the founder had at heart; and both institutes and special funds are likely, to say the least, to be quite as productive of good as the great prizes.

It will be noticed that the benefits of the foundation are to be open to all nationalities without distinction. No restriction of sex is mentioned in the statutes.

The Nobel Foundation is based on the will of Dr. Alfred Bernhard Nobel, dated November 27, 1895, of which the following passage contains the stipulations with regard to the foundation: "The residue of my realizable property left after my death shall be disposed of as follows: The capital, invested in safe investments by the executors of my will, shall constitute a fund of which the interest shall be distributed annually as a reward to such persons as have rendered to humanity the greatest services during the preceding year. The total amount shall be divided into five equal parts, and allotted, one [part] to the person who has made the most important discovery or invention in the physical sciences; another [part] to the person who has made the most important discovery or the greatest improvement in chemistry; the third to the author of the most important discovery in the domain of physiology or medicine; the fourth to the person who has produced the most remarkable literary work of an idealist tendency; and, finally, the fifth to the person who has done most, or laboured best, for the cause of fraternity among different peoples, for the suppression or reduction of standing armies, or for the formation and promotion of peace congresses.

"The prizes shall be awarded as follows: For physics and chemistry by the Swedish Academy of Sciences; for work in physiology and medicine by the Caroline Institute of Stockholm; for literature by the Stockholm Academy; and, finally, for the cause of peace, by a commission of five members elected by the Norwegian Storting. It is my express desire that in the award of the prizes no account shall be taken of nationality, so that each prize may go to the most worthy, whether he be Scandinavian or not."

An agreement was made with certain heirs to a smaller portion of Dr. Nobel's property, by which they renounced the inheritance for themselves and their heirs, on the express condition that—

- (a) The general statutes regulating the award of the prizes by the competent authorities should be drawn up in concert with a delegate representing the Robert Nobel family, and submitted for approval to the King of Sweden.
- (b) That certain permanent regulations, stated below, should be passed with regard to the award of the prizes.

I.—THE STATUTES.

(1) The General Fund.

1. The General Fund is to be controlled by a council of administration, composed of five members, of Swedish nationality, sitting at Stockholm. The president is to be nominated by the King of Sweden. The four other members are to be elected by a body of fifteen representatives, chosen by the corporate bodies named in the will. (See 2, below.)

A deputy is also to be elected to act in the absence of the president, and two deputies are to be elected for the other members of the council.

The members and deputies will be elected in future for a period of two years, the term of office beginning on May 1. But two of the members of the first council, selected by lot, will retire, after a single year of office, so that in future two may retire annually.

The council will elect one of its members as "director and administrator" (directeur-gérant).

2. Of the fifteen representatives, six are to be chosen by the Academy of Sciences (for the two sections of physics and chemistry), and three are to be chosen by each of the other corporate bodies. In addition, the Academy of Sciences will nominate four deputy-representatives, and each of the other corporate bodies two, to act for representatives prevented from so doing.

The representatives will hold office for two years. They will elect a president from among their number. Nine representatives will form a quorum.

In certain cases the representatives may be called on to control the management of the foundation by the council.

3. The functions of the council include the payment of the money value of prizes to the prize-winners and the payment on requisition of all expenses incurred in the award of prizes, the payment of sums due to the Nobel Institutes, and of sums required for all other purposes.

4. One-tenth of the net annual revenue from the General Fund is to be added to the capital; and the interest on sums for prizes not awarded is also to be added to the capital till such sums have been returned to the General Fund or transferred to a special fund.

(2) The Nobel Prizes.

1. The prizes are to be awarded as a rule annually.

2. For a work to be admitted to compete for a prize it must have been printed and published.

3. In order to be admitted to the competition, each work must be proposed in writing by some person or body of persons qualified to do so. Regulations defining the categories of persons qualified to propose works for the competitions are given below under the special regulations for the various sections. No person may propose his own work.

4. Each proposal must be accompanied by the written works and documents on which the proposal is based, and by a written statement in support of the proposal. The corporate body with whom the award of a prize lies shall be dispensed from proceeding to a detailed examination of any proposal in the following cases: (1) If the proposal or works presented are not written either in one of the Scandinavian languages, or in English, French, German, or Latin; (2) if the majority of the corporate body in question would be required, in order to appreciate the proposed work, to acquaint themselves with a memoir written in a language of which the interpretation would entail special difficulties or considerable expense.

5. The proposals received from the previous 1st of February to the 1st of February in each year shall be considered together. The will prescribes that prizes shall be awarded for work done "in the preceding year," but this expression is to be taken to mean "that the object of the awards shall be [as a rule] the most recent fruit of efforts in the fields designated in the will, but [that it may be] older work in [exceptional] cases where its importance has only recently been demonstrated."

6. If no work be regarded as deserving of a prize in any section the amount of the prize is to be held over until the next year; if the prize be not awarded then, the money may be either returned to the General Fund by the corporate body concerned or invested to form a special fund for the section, the income from which is to be used to promote the chief objects of the founder, otherwise than by the award of a prize. (See also under special funds, below.) In accordance with an agreement made with certain heirs of Nobel, referred to above, it is stipulated, for all future time, that in each section a prize shall be awarded at least once in each consecutive period of five years; and that the value of the prize given shall not be less than sixty per cent. (60 %) of the total amount available of the prize, and that it shall not be divided into more than three prizes. The present statutes provide that the amount of the prize may be equally divided between two works, both being judged worthy of the prize.

A prize may be awarded to the joint work of two or more collaborators.

The corporate bodies are allowed to decide if prizes within their respective jurisdictions may or may not be awarded to an institution or a society.

7. The four prizes for physics, chemistry, literature, and medicine will be awarded by the corporate bodies named in the will, after receiving a report in each case from a special committee, to be called a Nobel committee, and consisting of three or five members elected by the corporate body concerned. The "Peace" prize will be awarded by a commission of the Norwegian Storting in accordance with the terms of the will. Members of the Nobel committees and of the commission of the Storting may be of foreign nationality. In special cases the corporate bodies concerned may add to the Nobel committees additional members possessing special competence.

Members of the Nobel committees may receive a suitable remuneration for their work, to be fixed by the corporate body concerned.

8. Against the decisions with regard to the award of prizes no appeal can be made.

If in the deliberations with regard to the award any difference of opinion should arise, it shall neither be mentioned in the minutes of the proceedings nor otherwise revealed in any way.

9. A solemn assembly will be held on the 10th of December in each year, the anniversary of the death of the founder, at which the corporate bodies charged with the award of the prizes will present to each successful candidate an order for the amount of his prize, a diploma, and a gold medal bearing the effigy of the donor, and an appropriate inscription.

10. Each prizeman is bound, unless he is prevented from doing so (à moins d'empêchement), to deliver a public lecture on the subject of the work for which the prize was awarded. The lecture in the case of the first four prizes is to be delivered at Stockholm, in the case of the "Peace" prize at Christiania.

II.—SPECIAL REGULATIONS FOR THE SECTION OF LITERATURE.

1. The corporate body for the section is the Swedish Academy.

According to the statutes, the term "literature" in the will is intended to apply not only to purely literary works, but to all other works possessing from their form and style literary value.

The Nobel Prize in Literature.

2. The following institutions and persons are to be entitled to nominate competitors for the prizes, in accordance with the statutes :

- (i.) Members of the Swedish Academy (referred to hereafter as "the Academy") and members of the French Academy and the Spanish Academy, which resemble this Academy in their organization and aims.
- (ii.) Members of the literary sections of other Academies and members of literary societies similar to Academies.
- (iii.) University professors of æsthetics, literature, and history.

This regulation is to be published at least once every five years in an official journal or in one of the newspapers most widely read in the three Scandinavian countries and the principal countries of the civilized world.

The Nobel Literary Institute.

3. The institute will include an important library devoted chiefly to modern literature. The Academy will nominate a librarian, with one or more assistant librarians, and also a number of qualified literary assistants, titular and supernumerary, whose duty it will be to draw up reports on questions relating to the prize and on recent foreign literature, and to execute such translations of foreign works as may be required.

The institute will be placed under the supervision of an inspector nominated by the King of Sweden, and under the immediate direction of one of the members of the Academy nominated specially by this body.

The Special Fund for Literature.

4. The Academy has power to use the special fund to encourage, in accordance with the chief objects of the founder, all literary activity, in Sweden and abroad, of such kind as may be regarded as of importance to civilization, especially in the intellectual domain to which it is the duty of the Academy to devote its attention and care. (See below.)

III.—THE CORPORATE BODIES MENTIONED IN THE WILL OF THE FOUNDER.

The Royal Academy of Sciences (Kongl. Vetenskaps Akademien) of Stockholm was founded in 1739. Its present statutes bear the date July 13, 1850. Its object is to encourage the sciences, to aid in their development, and to spread scientific knowledge by means of printed publications.

The King of Sweden is the patron of the Academy, which includes a hundred Swedish and Norwegian and seventy-five foreign members. The national members are divided into nine sections, as follows:

- I. Pure Mathematics.
- II. Applied Mathematics.
- III. Applied Mechanics.
- IV. Physical Sciences.
- V. Chemistry, Geology, and Mineralogy.
- VI. Botany and Zoology.
- VII. The Medical Sciences.
- VIII. Technology, Economics, and Statistics.
- IX. The Sciences and Scientific Professions generally.

The president of the Academy is elected annually, and there are several other officers, including a perpetual secretary, whose especial business it is to manage the affairs of the Academy.

The Swedish Academy (Svenska Akademien) of Stockholm was founded on March 20, 1786, by Gustavus III., and at the same time received its statutes, which are still in force. It is devoted to literature, including both prose and poetry; and the chief object of the Academy is to labour for the purity, the vigour, and the elevation of the Swedish language, in scientific works, and especially in the various branches of poetry and prose, including those which serve for the interpretation of religious truths. It is the duty of the Academy to compile a dictionary and a grammar of the Swedish language, and to publish treatises tending to strengthen and develop literary taste (le bon goût). The Academy awards annual prizes for competitions in prose and poetry. The King is the patron of the Academy. The Academy includes eighteen members, who must be of Swedish nationality. The officers include a director, a chancellor, and a perpetual secretary.

The Royal Caroline Institute of Medicine and Surgery (Kongl. Karolinska Medico-Kirurgiska Institutet) of Stockholm dates from the year 1815. The statutes at present in force received the sanction of the King of Sweden on April 29, 1886. The Academy corresponds to a Faculty of Medicine, and has the same powers as the Faculties of Medicine in the Universities of Upsala and Lund. The institute carries on the theoretical and practical teaching of the medical sciences, and awards diplomas to medical students by examination.

The direction and administration of the institute are in the hands of a Rector, elected by the College of Professors from among the members. The present number of professors is thirty-three.

The Norwegian Storting is the Legislative Assembly of Norway. It is elected indirectly by universal suffrage triennially. It consists of 114 members.

Authors, Playwrights, and Composers, Incorporated Society of, 1, Central Buildings, Tothill Street, S.W. Founded in 1883 by Sir Walter Besant, Sir Frederick Pollock and other well-known writers. Incorporated in 1884 under the Presidency of Lord Tennyson. On Lord Tennyson's death Mr. George Meredith was elected President, to him succeeded Mr. Thomas Hardy in 1909. Its main objects are the maintenance, definition and defence of literary, dramatic, and musical property and the work of black-and-white artists, the consolidation of the laws of Domestic Copyright, and the promotion of International Copyright. The membership is considerably over 2,000, and continues to increase. The general work of the Society, with much information on technical subjects, will be found in the pages of The Author, published monthly, and now in its sixteenth volume. (No issue in August and September.) Full details of its works are contained in the Prospectus issued from the Society's offices. The Society issues also from time to time pamphlets bearing on literary production. Among these may be mentioned "The Methods of Publishing," "The Cost of Production" (now out of print), "Forms of Agreement issued by the Publishers' Association, with Comments by G. Herbert Thring," "The Addenda to the Methods of Publishing," and a few others. All information with regard to the standing of the different publishing houses, contracts for the publication of books, serial issue in magazines, dramatic and cinematograph productions, and the marketing of musical compositions, can be obtained from the Secretary. Members are also entitled to the opinion of the Society's Solicitor in addition to that of the Secretary, who is himself a Solicitor. The rights of members are supported in the Courts of Law at the expense of the Society, subject to the sanction of the Committee, and counsel's opinion is obtained (with the Committee's consent) without any extra charge to the member. These are a few of the many matters that it takes into consideration. Two of the most interesting developments are a Pension Scheme for the benefit of authors who are members of the Society, and a Collection Bureau for the collection of members' fees under contracts and under the compulsory licence clauses of the Copyright Act, 1911. The Pension Fund Committee have already assigned several pensions. The Collection Bureau undertakes the collection of royalty accounts and moneys from publishers, fees from managers and others engaged in theatrical enterprise (including fees for cinematograph representations), mechanical instrument fees for composers, and fees for the amateur representation of members' plays. It has agents in New York and in Amsterdam. The names on the Council include many of the best known in the various branches of literature. The Society is managed by a Committee, with Sub-Committees on Art, Copyright, Music, and the Drama. Subscription—One guinea per annum, or ten guineas for life-membership. Secretary—Mr G. HERBERT THRING, Solicitor in England for La Société des Gens de Lettres.

Authors' Producing Society, 4, Duke Street Adelphi, W.C. Founded 1914. Objects—An Association of subscribers formed for the purpose of producing plays—particularly those of an educational and sociological character—hitherto unseen in England.

Ballad Society. Founded 1868. Object—To render accessible to all subscribers the rare and large stores of ballads in the public—and, as far as possible, the private—collections of the country. Yearly Subscription—One guinea for small-paper copies. Hon. Secretary—W. A. DALZIEL, Esq., 67 Victoria Road, Finsbury Park, London, N.

Bibliographical Society, 20 Hanover Square. 1892. Objects—To print, for the use of members, works connected with bibliography, and generally to promote and encourage bibliographical studies. Membership—usually restricted to 300, but open till six months after the end of the war. Meetings—Monthly from October to March. Publications—Transactions, Illustrated. Monographs, &c, annually. Hon Secretaries—A. W. POLLARD, British Museum; R. B. MCKERROW, 4 Phoenix Lodge Mans., Brook Green, W.

Blake Society. Founded June 1, 1912. Objects—To draw together admirers of the poet-painter, William Blake, and to encourage the study of his works. The first annual meeting was held on August 12, 1912 (the 85th anniversary of Blake's death), at "Wylde's," North End, Hampstead, when papers (since published in book form) were read by Dr. Greville MacDonald, Mr. Herbert Jenkins, Mr. W. Jealous, Professor G. Leonard, M.A., and Mr. F. C. Owlett. Boz Club. The Boz Club was founded in the year 1900 by Percy Fitzgerald, M.A., F.S.A., who selected as the original members those only who had personally known Dickens, and belonged to the Athenæum Club—about a dozen persons. Later, those who had written on the subject of Dickens, or had studied his books, were admitted, bringing the number up to fifty or so. In the year 1903 the Club was remodelled and extended. There is now a roll of about 160 members. Like the Walter Scott Club at Edinburgh, it has no fixed locale or habitation. A guinea is the annual subscription, which includes the price of a dinner, at which guests are admitted by an invitation of the Committee. At the dinner there is an address by the Chairman, and a discussion on Dickensian topics.

International Exchange Service of the Smithsonian Institution. Since its foundation in 1846 the Smithsonian Institution has conducted a system of the exchange of literary and scientific publications voluntarily presented by institutions or individuals in the United States to correspondents throughout the world, and reciprocally.

These exchanges are in no sense of a commercial nature, for no publications for sale are allowed transmission. More than one-half of the exchanges consist of Government documents, while the remainder are publications exchanged between learned societies and savants throughout the world. The International Exchange Service has salaried resident agents in London and Budapest, and a number of agents in various parts of the world lend their services gratuitously. The correspondents who more or less regularly exchange publications through the Smithsonian Institution now aggregate 60,123, of which 11,783 are in the United States and the rest in foreign lands, extending even to the remotest corners of the world.

Further particulars with reference to the above can be obtained on application to Messrs. W. WESLEY & SON, 28 Essex Street, Strand, w.c., who are the London agents for the Smithsonian Institution.

A FEW OF THE
BIBLIOGRAPHICAL AND TYPOGRAPHICAL TERMS
IN MORE GENERAL USE

Books are defined respectively as folio, quarto (4to), octavo (8vo), duodecimo (12mo), sextodecimo (16mo), octodecimo (18mo), vigesimo-quarto (24mo) trigesimo-secundo (32mo) etc. These definitions are arrived at by the number of times a sheet is folded ; for instance, a folio would be two leaves to the sheet, a quarto four leaves, and so on. Sometimes it is difficult to distinguish, say, an octavo from a quarto ; but if it is printed on a laid paper, the water-lines that run at intervals through the sheet (not to be confused with the smaller and closer wire-marks of the sheet) will determine this. The water-lines on a folio, octavo, and octodecimo would be perpendicular ; on a quarto, duodecimo, and sextodecimo, horizontal. The signatures or letters placed at the foot of the first, and sometimes the third, page also serve as a guide to identification.

Advance sheets or copies. Printed in advance for simultaneous publication elsewhere, or for preliminary notices.

Ampersand. The abbreviation or sign for the word " and " : thus, & (roman), & (italic), & (black-letter).

Antiqua. A German expression for Roman types.

Bastard title. The fly- or half-title before the full title of the work.

Black-letter. A general expression used to indicate old English text or church type.

Block. A general term used as embracing woodcut, electro, or zinco.

Body of the work. The text or subject-matter is thus described to distinguish it from the preliminary, appendix, or notes.

Broadside. A sheet printed on one side only.

Calendered paper. Paper very highly rolled or glazed, much used for printing illustrated books or magazines.

Cast off. To calculate or estimate length of copy to be printed—a troublesome task in uneven or badly-written MS.

Clarendon. A bold or fat-faced typé is generally thus described. The older founts were called "Egyptian."

Clerical errors. Mistakes in copying MS.

Cliché. French term for a cast, usually applied to stereo or electro duplicates.

Collate. To run through the sheets of a book to see if the signatures are in sequence.

Colophon. An inscription or tail-piece, usually a printer's imprint, at the end of a book.

Cut edges. A book which has been cut on the three sides is said to have cut edges.

Cut-in notes. Side-notes which are inserted within the text at the side instead of in the margin.

Deckle. The raw rough edge of handmade paper is thus termed.

Dummy copy. A copy generally made up of blank leaves to represent the actual bulk of a work not quite complete.

End leaves or papers. The blank fly-leaves at either end of a book.

Fly-title. The half-title in front of the general title, or which divides sections of a work.

Folio. A sheet of paper folded in two leaves only.

Fore-edge. The outer side of a book (distinct from the head or tail) when folded.

Format. The bibliographical term for size and shape of a book.

Fount. This term is applied to the whole number of letters constituting a complete set of types of any particular class of face or body.

Fraktur. A German expression for their text or black-letter characters.

Half-bound. Books partly bound in leather, with cloth or paper sides.

Half-title. The sub-title in front of the full title.

Heads. A term applied to the margins at the tops of the pages.

Indent. To set a line some little distance back, as in the case of a fresh paragraph.

Inferior figures and letters. Made to range at the bottom of letters, thus : 1 2 3 a e i o

Leaded matter. Types with leads between the lines, in contradistinction to "solid" matter.

Letterpress. Printed matter from type, as distinct from lithographic or plate printing.

Lower-case letters. The small letters as used here, a, b, c, d, etc.

Moulds. Generally understood as the preliminary stage in stereotyping by paper process.

Octavo. A sheet of paper folded into eight, shortly written thus : 8vo.

Off-set. The set-off of ink from one sheet to another, the result of insufficient drying or bad ink.

Preliminary. Any matter coming before the text of a work : title, preface, contents, etc.

Proof. A trial print of any forme of type, plates, or blocks.

Pulls. A term generally applied to proofs.

Quarto. A sheet folded into four leaves ; shortly : 4to.

Quire. Twenty-four sheets. Books in sheets, that is, not bound, are said to be in quires.

Quotes. A printer's term for turned commas (‘‘) and apostrophes (’), placed respectively at the beginning and end of quoted matter.

Ream. Twenty quires. A printer's ream is 516 sheets ; handmade and drawing papers sometimes 472, 480, or 500 sheets.

Recto. The right-hand pages of any work.

Rubricated. Printed in red ink.

Serif. The fine line on the top and bottom of a letter, as in H. Sanserif thus : H.

Set-off. Where the ink sets off from one sheet to another.

Shoulder notes. Marginal notes placed at the top corner of the page.

Signature. The letter or figure at the foot of the first page of a sheet to guide the binder in folding ; also used by printers to identify any particular sheet.

Size copy. A thickness or dummy copy [q.v.].

Slips. Applied to matter not made up into pages, but pulled as proofs in long slips.

Small capitals. The smaller capitals (as distinct from the full capitals), thus : STANDING. Indicated in MS. by two strokes (=) underneath.

Standing. Type not distributed after printing is said to be ‘‘standing.’’

Stereotypes. Casts of pages of types, etc., in metal, either by ‘‘plaster’’ or ‘‘paper’’ process.

Superior letters and figures. Small letters cast at the top of the shoulder of type, used for references or abbreviations, thus : ^{1 2 3} Mr No.

Swash letters. Seventeenth-century italic capitals, with tails and flourishes, thus : A M N, etc.

Tails. The bottoms or tail ends of pages.

Turned commas. Used at the beginning of quoted matter, thus, ‘‘—and followed at the end by’’. Sometimes called ‘‘inverted commas.’’

Typography. The art or style of printing from movable letters.

Uncut edges. Books not cut down, but not necessarily "unopened."

Unopened edges. Applied to books the edges of which have not been opened.

Verso. The obverse or back of a leaf, the reverse of "recto" [q.v.].

Wrong fount. Letters of a different character or series mixed with another fount.

A LIST OF TECHNICAL TERMS IN THE VARIOUS PROCESSES OF REPRODUCTION

 Processes or engraved plates which must be printed separately.

- Aquatint*. Etching on copper or steel through grounds of finely-powdered resinous substances.
- Autogravure*. A copper-plate photo-etched from a bichromated gelatine basis.
- Autotype*. Prints reproduced by means of certain bichromated gelatine processes (carbon or collotype).
- Chromograph*. A reproduction of a coloured original by litho, photo-litho, or photo-etched blocks.
- Collotype*. A photo reproduction printed in ink from a surface of sensitized and exposed gelatine.
- Cuts*. Any impression from a type block.
- Electrotype*. A copper-faced facsimile of a block or plate produced from a wax mould in a depositing battery.
- Etching*. An impression from a copper or steel plate, the lines of which have been drawn by hand and etched with or without an acid.
- Ferro-print*. Ferro-gallic and ferro-prussiate. Prints made from salts of iron sensitizers, principally used for plans and copying tracings in blue or black lines.
- Glyptotype*. A print produced by the Woodbury-type process transferred to plate paper.
- Half-tint blocks*. See Tint blocks.
- Half-tone blocks*. See Tint blocks.
- Heliotype*. A process of collotype printing.
- India proofs*. An impression on China, Japan, or India paper, from an engraved plate.
- Intaglio, sunk or hollowed*. An etched plate having sunk lines or picture.
- Lichtdruck*. Collotype.
- Line process*. Usually applied to any photo process for producing type blocks in relief.
- Lithography*. Printing from stone with ink specially prepared.
- Lithotint*. An etching executed on stone.
- Mezzotint, mixed* (as in Turner's Liber Studiorum). The subject first etched on steel or copper to secure the forms, then rocked over as in pure mezzotint, and the subject "scraped out."

- Mezzotint, pure. The plate, steel or copper, first roughened by a rocking-tool till the surface partakes more or less of the nature of a very fine file; then the subject "scraped out" to the various degrees of light and shade required, and burnished where very high lights are wanted.
- Monotint.* Tint printing in a single colour.
- Nickelface.* The coating of an engraved plate or block with a battery-deposited surface of nickel.
- Photocrome. A process of reproducing photographs in colours.
- Photo-chromotypy. Photo-etched type blocks for printing in colours.
- Photogravure. A photo-engraved plate in lines or tones for copper-plate printing, or impressions therefrom.
- Photo-lithography. The process of printing from stone by means of a photographic transfer.
- Photo-zinco.* A photo-etched type block.
- Process blocks.* Blocks produced by a photo-etching process.
- Process work.* Work produced by a photo-etching process.
- Relief printing.* (a) Printing from type-blocks, (b) printing letters or designs in relieve.
- Remarque proofs.* Original impressions from steel or copper engraved plates, and which usually have a device on the margin instead of a title.
- Silverprints. Usually defines a chloride of silver print—an ordinary photograph.
- Stereotypes.* Casts in stereotype metal (lead and zinc) from type or type blocks.
- Three-colour blocks. Blocks chemically produced from nature or pictures in colours by means of a photo process, and which render all the colours of the original.
- Tint blocks.* Type blocks of wash drawings or photographs produced by means of ruled dots or tints.
- Vignettes.* Usually applied to illustrations which are shaded or softened off at the edges.
- Woodbury Prints. Prints which closely resemble ordinary photographs, produced by a process invented by Mr. W. B. Woodbury.
- Woodcuts.* Wood blocks or impressions from the same.
- Xylography.* Generally applied to the printing of old block-books.

SOME BOOK AND OTHER FOUNTS OF TYPE

IN giving to our readers this selection of book and other founts employed by the printer, it should be noted that Nos. 1, 2, and 3 are essentially the three classes of type mostly used for book printing, whereas Nos. 4, 5, 6, and 7, although occasionally seen in book work of a more unusual character, are generally classed as fancy types. Two forms of Gothic, Nos. 8 and 9, are shown as examples of old and modern black letter. The example No. 10 is a somewhat heavy face of type sometimes used for book work, a fashion set by the Kelmscott Press, which was established by the late William Morris in the last decade of the nineteenth century.

The other examples are but a few only of the very many jobbing or fancy types in use, and those shown are more or less representative of certain classes of founts of which there are endless varieties, some of which run riot in design, and are but mere travesties of the original form of the alphabet. Those now shown are perhaps sufficient and varied enough to enable the publisher or author to indicate to the printer in a general way types he may be desirous of using for either book printing or display work.

A word as to the employment of these types may not be out of place here. For the printing of books it may be taken, as already explained, that Nos. 1, 2, and 3 represent in a broad sense the three kinds of type almost universally used. No. 1, the Caslon Old Face, cut in the eighteenth century, is best adapted for the printing of books of an antiquarian character, whereas No. 2, which is the revived Old Style Face, and which was introduced about the middle of last century, may be employed for most books with good effect, as may be seen in the LITERARY YEAR-BOOK itself. No. 3 is the so-called Modern Face, although it is really a survival of those founts which came into use in the early part of the nineteenth century. This character is mostly used for newspaper or official work, and not so much for the printing of books. We have also mentioned that Nos. 4, 5, 6, and 7 are sometimes used for the printing of books, but they are really best adapted for pamphlet and other commercial work. The Clarendon examples (Nos. 11, 12, 13, 14) are adapted mostly for side headings or emphasized passages in books such as dictionaries, and the few remaining examples of jobbing types are best for display matter or advertisements. Many of these latter founts consist of capitals and figures only, and do not include the small or ordinary lower-case letters.

ROYALTIES

AUTHORS will find the following tables useful whenever they adopt the method of payment by results known as royalties. It is somewhat difficult at times in publishers' accounts to ascertain the exact sum due to the author when x copies of his book have been sold at the price of y shillings, on which a royalty of z per cent. is due to the author. The following tables are intended to facilitate this calculation by reducing the somewhat laborious test of complicated multiplication to a simple process of addition. The matter is further complicated by the general practice of publishers accounting to authors for sales on the basis of 13 as 12 (or sometimes 25 as 24), which they generally grant to the retail booksellers. There are accordingly two sets of tables, one in order to reduce 13 to 12 (or 13 to $12\frac{1}{2}$), and the remainder to ascertain the exact amount due on different systems of royalty and on price books. Thus, if 936 of a 5s. book have been sold on which a royalty of 10 per cent. is due, the first table will enable the calculator to ascertain that 936 could only be reckoned as 864, and from the fourth column of the table devoted to 5s. the royalties for 800, for 60, and for 4 are already given, and the final result easily works out at £21 12s. Generally speaking, it is sufficient to check the results roughly—e.g., by finding out how much 850 copies would bring in.

In making the following calculations a certain difficulty arises owing to the deficiency of our coinage, which reckons nothing lower than a farthing, and to the trade custom of the booksellers by which the moiety is the only fractional part of the price of a book recognised. In consequence some of the results are not strictly in accordance with the Rule of Three.

The suggestion has been made that it is not entirely reasonable to define these royalties within the limits of $2\frac{1}{2}$ and 20 per cent.; but the royalty of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. is in frequent use, especially where colonial editions of books published in England are concerned, and, as has been shown, in graduated royalties. Royalties of more than 20 per cent., on the other hand, are not frequent; and as these tables are intended to afford assistance to the majority of authors—to take, in fact, the place of a working guide—it would be misleading to include figures which are only applicable to exceptional cases.

AGENTS

(i.) BRITISH

This list consists mainly of the names of Press and Literary Agents, whose work includes the arrangement of books and articles for publication and all commercial negotiations concerning them, together with the general management of literary property.

AUTHORS' ALLIANCE (THE), 5 and 6 Clement's Inn, W.C.; 1402 Broadway, New York; and 100 Flinders Street, Melbourne, Australia. Manager: HATHERLEY CLARKE The Authors Alliance is an association of authors, journalists, editors, and publishers' readers, who place their services at the disposal of authors, dramatists, artists, and literary workers and aspirants generally. Its managers possess nearly twenty years' practical experience in every department of literary work, and are able to offer expert advice and assistance, while their facilities for placing MSS with publishers and editors are unrivalled. The Alliance works in the interests of the author, its aim being in all cases to protect the author's interests and to promote his literary success. It also acts as agent for artists and illustrators, and has every facility for placing good work advantageously. (See Advertisement, p. xvii.)

AUTHORS' SYNDICATE, LTD., 3-7 Southampton Street, Strand, W.C. Founded 1890. This Organization acts as advisers and agents for the valuation, sale, purchase, registration, and management of literary and dramatic copyright property in England, the Continent of Europe, and the United States of America. Mr. W. Morris Colles, the founder and managing Director, is part author of Playright and Copyright in all Countries (Macmillan) and Success in Literature (Methuen). Mr. J. W. Gilmer, formerly Managing Director of Sprigg, Pedrick, Ltd., is a Director.

BROWN (CURTIS), LTD., 6 Henrietta Street, Covent Garden, W.C., 55 Rue des Mathurins, Paris, and 110-112 West 40th Street, New York City. Representative in Sweden, Harald Thornberg, Helsingborg; in Holland, A. Reyding, Amsterdam; in Italy, F. Santandrea, Milan. British, American, and Continental book, dramatic, serial, and film rights placed. Representatives in the principal European Capitals. This firm, which represents a large number of the leading authors, has its own New York office devoted exclusively to the work of its clients, and under the management of experienced members of its English staff. The firm makes a speciality of securing a market for English

1476 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, N.Y., U.S.A.

CAMBRIDGE LITERARY AGENCY, 8 Henrietta Street, London, w.c. (late of 115 Strand). Managing Director: GEORGE G. MAGNUS. Manager: JOHN WHITE. Secretary: F. G. ABBOTT. Representative in New York: F. M. HOLLY. Business: Placing novels, short stories, articles, and poems. Literary matter placed with over 200 publishers and periodicals. Many well-known editors are clients of this firm. Over 1,000 unique testimonials received from authors whose work has passed through the Agency. During the first week of 1908 (January 1 to January 7) the C.L.A. placed over twenty novels, serials, and short stories by unknown writers. This record was beaten March 13 to 19, 1909, during which week the Agency sold one novel, twenty-four short stories, and four articles. The policy of the C.L.A. is to deal with only suitable matter, and it is forced to refuse considerably over one thousand MSS. annually that do not reach the Agency's standard. This careful selection is the secret of the C.L.A.'s phenomenal success. The obtaining of the best possible terms and the highest prices is the aim of this firm, and it has numerous testimonials in proof of its good offices in this important direction. Furthermore, payment is made on acceptance of work, without further charge, thus saving the author months of waiting for his money. The Agency offers £150 in prizes for its clients, without entrance fee of any kind, to encourage Authors to send in their best work. These prizes are paid twice yearly, the winners receiving valuable publicity in the Press. Established 17 years, and known as "The Straight Agency." Telephone: 1648 Gerrard. EVERYBODY who writes books, stories, articles—serious, scientific, or fiction—should give their work the best possible chance by having it carefully revised by those who make a study of the requirements of different editors, and of the various literary markets and whose endeavour it is to help increase the value of such work.

AUTHORS who write quickly and fluently are often inclined to pass over little errors which annoy an editor: unthinkingly they miss out an explanatory clause.

BEGINNERS are usually unaware of the selling essentials of literary work and think if they write a good essay editors will take it as soon as they receive it.

WATT, MESSRS. A. P., & SON, Hastings House, Norfolk Street, Strand, W.C. Mr. A. P. Watt, the late senior member of the firm, was the originator of the literary agent. He was the first to conceive and put into practice the idea of the literary agent, acting as an intermediary between authors and publishers and editors. Messrs. A. P. Watt & Son are at all times glad to hear from authors, whether at the beginning of their career or of established reputation, with a view to the disposal of their work. A good idea of the value to authors of Messrs. A. P. Watt & Son's Literary Agency is given in the following extract from the Autobiography of the late Sir Walter Besant "Let me here express my great and lasting gratitude to my agents, Mr. A. P. Watt and his son, by whose watch and ward my interests have been so carefully guarded for eighteen years. During that time I have always been engaged for three years in advance; I have been relieved from every kind of pecuniary anxiety, my income has been multiplied by three at least; and I have had, through them, the offer of a great deal more work than I could undertake. I cannot speak too strongly of the services rendered to me by my literary agents. Of course, there are different kinds of agents. There is the agent, for example, who knows nothing about his business. But the agent who does know his business, who knows also editors, publishers, and their arrangements, may be of immense use to the novelist, the essayist, the traveller—in short, to the author of any book

10,000 FREE LESSONS

IN HEBREW, GREEK,

LATIN, FRENCH, ENGLISH, AND LOGIC.

The New Simplified System of Learning.

YOU should write for FREE Test Lessons.

10,000 Free Lessons in Hebrew, Greek, Latin, French, English, and Logic are to be presented

This course has been decided upon by the Directors of the School of Simplified Study, Ltd., as a Test-Demonstration of the new "Simplified" system of acquiring a scholarly knowledge of Logic and Languages which are the very keystones of our present-day thought and speech.

There is no one who cannot at least double his personal powers of thought and expression by such a knowledge of these Languages and Logic as may now be easily acquired by anyone at the mere expense of a few minutes of time daily.

Instead of the path of the Student being made dull or monotonous by the obstacles that hitherto rendered his progress almost impossible, there is now a sheer delight in the very speed with which a knowledge of Hebrew, Greek, Latin, French, English, or Logic may be acquired.

Every Lesson is a step on the path of progress to efficiency. It is impossible for a student to sit down to a "Simplified" lesson even for five minutes without feeling that he has literally absorbed into the machinery of his brain that which will be for ever after a useful part and parcel of his mental equipment.

A Pleasure, not a Task.

The Method originated by the Rev. J. C. Wilcox, B.A. (of St. John's College, Cambridge) is changing the study of Languages and Logic from a task into a rare pleasure. Numerous students under the System have written to say that they are quite sorry when the Course of Study has been completed, for the lessons had become one of the most enjoyable features of their daily life.

Students who are looking forward with anxiety to future examinations in these difficult subjects will find the burden of worry fall from their shoulders the moment they become acquainted with this delightfully easy "Simplified" system of mastering all their intricacies.

Many a student has written his thanks for the WILCOX SYSTEM OF SIMPLIFIED STUDY for the prominent part it played in helping him to win a Scholarship or a Degree.

What 20 Minutes a Day Will Do.

An Additional Pleasure attached to this system is the remarkable feature that it can be acquired in those odd moments which fall even to the busiest of men. You can study in your own home. You can learn it on a railway journey. You can make all the slack minutes of your life valuable to you. You are not asked to devote hours of study daily to the subject. Twenty minutes a day at the outside will suffice to make you a perfect master of these greatest of all languages of History and the greatest of all Sciences.

How to Learn to Speak, Write, and Debate Successfully.

That you may have a thoroughly fair opportunity to understand the nature of the "Simplified" System, the Directors of the school have decided to present 10,000 Free Lessons. How you can obtain these is explained below. You can take up any one, more or all the courses if you desire. If you are at all ambitious and wish to speak well or write well, you should not fail to equip yourself by means of these delightful courses of instructions, while to speak, write, or debate without a deep and accurate knowledge of how to express your thoughts with Logical accuracy is always dangerous. Make yourself a thorough master of these subjects and you master and command your powers.

The fee for the whole course in any of these subjects is quite moderate—but if you do not wish to pay the whole fee in one sum, special arrangements will be made for you to pay it by easy subscriptions.

Write or Call for Free Lessons.

A full description of each subject has been given in special books. With each book other valuable information and evidences of the success of the system will also be sent. These you can obtain absolutely free by calling or writing to THE SECRETARY, THE SCHOOL OF SIMPLIFIED STUDY, LTD., 35, ST. PAUL'S CHAMBERS, 19 & 21, LUDGATE HILL E.C.

Just say what particular subject or subjects you are specially interested in, and he will forward free lessons by return of post.

They cost you nothing. But they will prove to you how you can acquire a sound knowledge of all or any of the above subjects without effort or heavy expense.
